DEAN’S PREFACE

The Faculty Handbook gathers together for ready reference the various regulations, policies, and practices which govern and inform academic life at Cornell College. Most of the entries have their origin in the legislative process by which faculty members govern their own activities. Others present the current thinking about matters related to administrative support. Reaching as far back as the Charter of the College, the Handbook reflects the continuity of our enterprise; publishing new provisions each year, it reflects also the vitality of our institutional life.

The 2013 edition incorporates all of the pertinent legislative changes approved by the Cornell faculty during the past academic year. The edition also incorporates the revised Bylaws of Cornell College that were approved by the Board of Trustees in May 2013. A complete set of these Bylaws is appended to the handbook. The revised opening section of the Handbook, “The Corporate Faculty,” is taken directly from Article V of the Bylaws of Cornell College. Editorial changes have been made to many sections of chapters VI (Administrative Information) and VII (Faculty Benefits) in the form of electronic links to webpages or current policy documents that have more detailed information. These editorial changes have been made in consultation with the Committee on Committees.

This handbook reflects the evolution of policy and practice at Cornell College as we seek to continually improve our operations and enhance learning for our students.

PREFACE TO THE 2005 EDITION

This edition of the Faculty Handbook represents an effort by the Committee on Committees to see that the document reflects current legislation and practice at the College. Some notable changes resulting from recent faculty legislation include a decrease in the length of time allowed for online nominations and elections, a change in the policy on course enrollments, elimination of the Bachelor of Philosophy degree, and the creation of a new faculty committee (Writing Program Committee). In addition, we revised some wording for clarity and accuracy. As usual, the various administrative offices updated the sections involving their offices as necessary.

Furthermore, this year the Committee on Committees established a procedure for online archiving of the Faculty Handbook, which has been published online since 2000. From now on a file marked “Handbook Changes” will exist within the online Faculty Handbook folder to keep a running list of revisions made to the Handbook, along with the appropriate footnotes explaining the revisions (only the Handbook sections immediately affected by the changes will appear in this file). Once all changes for the year have been made, both a copy of the revised Faculty Handbook and the “Handbook Changes” file will be placed in the Handbook Archive folder and labeled for the appropriate year. The Handbook will then be ready for the next year and the process will begin again. Thus, at any given time one will be able to view the current year’s Handbook, any changes that have been made in it recently, and past editions of the document. This procedure therefore allows changes to be made in the Handbook as they occur throughout the year, and also provides a clear and easily accessible record of what specific changes were made and why.

The Committee on Committees would like to thank Nancy Rawson in the Office of Academic Affairs for her assistance throughout the revision process.

PREFACE TO THE 2000 EDITION

This edition of the Cornell College Faculty Handbook contains changes made since October 1997. The more important changes are a focusing of the role of the Subcommittee on Academic Programs in dealing with changes in existing courses, a new policy on sexual harassment, a new severance program for faculty, a revision of the criteria for granting a grade of Withdrawal, and the implementation of a six-course teaching load.

As the 1982 edition of the Handbook was the first to be printed on a computer, this millennial edition is the first to be made available on-line on the Academic Affairs website.

For the Committee on Committees,

PREFACE TO THE 1992 EDITION

The Cornell College Faculty Handbook is intended as a helpful guide for new and continuing members of the faculty and administration of the college. It provides detailed information on the faculty committee system, administrative organization and practice, personnel policies, and fringe benefits of the college. It addresses procedures and criteria for appointment, reappointment and tenure, standards of professional conduct, and academic regulations.

Although the Committee on Committees updates the Handbook each year, it has not undertaken an overall review and revision since 1980. Our intention in this review of the Handbook was to increase organization and clarity and to make the Handbook reflect current campus practice wherever possible and appropriate.

Information in the Faculty Handbook is derived from the following sources: Article of Incorporation and By-Laws, Cornell College, revised version adopted October 17. 1989; actions of the Board of Trustees, faculty legislation; administrative policy; and the AAUP Redbook. Where it has been possible or practicable, this edition of the Handbook has been documented, and reference to original sources is provided in a separate section entitled “Sources.” In several instances the original has been altered in style.

In addition to the Faculty Handbook, faculty members should be familiar with these publications: the Cornell College Catalogue, the Compass (the student Handbook), and the Articles of Incorporation and By-Laws, Cornell College, 1989. Previous fully-revised editions of the Faculty Handbook have appeared in 1950, 1959, 1965, 1973 and 1980.

The Committee on Committees would like to thank all who helped with this revision, especially Charles Connell for his seemingly endless knowledge of college lore and procedure, Dean Moore for underwriting this complete re-issuance of the Handbook, and Carol Brokel for her work in producing and editing this volume.

Department Chairs

Department chairs are appointed by the Dean of the College, after consulting with the outgoing chair and perhaps with other members of the department. Chairs generally are appointed for three-year terms. A Chair may be re-appointed, but in general the Dean will attempt to rotate the duty among the qualified members of the department. Faculty members are expected to assume this responsibility as part of their duties without additional compensation or reduction in teaching load.
Faculty Meetings

The official business of the Faculty is conducted at Faculty meetings. These meetings are generally held in West Science, Room 100, at 11:10 a.m. on the first Tuesday of each term and on succeeding Tuesdays if there is any unfinished business pending before the faculty, or if a special situation merits the calling of a meeting. Faculty meetings are adjourned not later than 12:00 noon unless the faculty has voted to suspend the rules in order to postpone adjournment. It is the duty of all full-time faculty members to attend these meetings. Voting members of the faculty include all tenured or tenure-track teaching faculty with the rank of Instructor or higher, and all administrators with faculty status. The Dean of the College distributes a list of voting members every September.

Although administrators without faculty status, visiting full-time faculty, and part-time members of the instructional staff do not have the right to vote, they do have the privilege of participating in the deliberations at faculty meetings. Two students selected by the Student Senate have the privilege of participating in deliberations at faculty meetings; in addition, student representatives on faculty committees are permitted to address faculty meetings during the discussion of their committee's proposal. No students have the right to vote at faculty meetings.

During the time when announcements are made any faculty member may address questions on matters of common concern to members of the administration for the purposes of information and clarification.

Faculty Meetings: Rules of Procedure

The Cornell Faculty conducts its legislative meetings in accordance with Robert’s Rules of Order Revised; however, certain of its procedures are not set forth in Robert’s.

1. Agenda

   A. The Dean of the College is responsible for establishing the agenda. The Academic Affairs Coordinator shall take the minutes of each faculty meeting, see that they are duplicated and distributed to each faculty member before the day of the next faculty meeting, and make an index for each set of minutes to be added to the central index in the Office of Academic Affairs.

   B. It is the duty of committee chairs or other faculty members to inform the Dean’s Office well in advance if they have matters to be placed on the agenda. Any faculty member wishing to make an announcement should also notify the Dean’s Office in advance.

   C. The agenda includes items for the first faculty meeting of the term and unfinished business from previous meetings. Included in the agenda will be all items that have had prior presentation at a previous meeting.

   D. The Dean will follow the “Rule of Reason” in ordering or reordering the agenda during the course of the term. The faculty may, by normal parliamentary procedure, change the order of the agenda, and may postpone or table proposals.
E. Each meeting of the faculty is a separate meeting and not a continuation of the first meeting of the term. Items of new business may be introduced at any meeting of the faculty. Those given prior presentation at the first meeting will normally be considered at a later meeting in the term; those introduced at subsequent meetings in the term may have to wait until the following term for consideration. Proposals not acted upon by the end of one academic year carry over into the next.

2. Prior Presentation

Prior presentation is not a motion. It is simply a declaration of one’s intention at the next meeting to move the adoption of a proposal. The Faculty then has at least one week to consider the matter, to investigate, and to develop amendments.

The conditions attached to this rule are:

A. All proposals of a substantive nature, i.e. that call for change in College or Faculty policy, require prior presentation. The Chair is empowered to rule on whether a proposal is substantive. Only main motions are prior presented; amendments to motions are not, even if substitute motions.

B. A motion to waive the rule of prior presentation is debatable and to carry requires affirmation by two-thirds of the members present and voting.

C. The proposal may be read orally if short or may be summarized and the full draft distributed (to all members having the right to speak, even if not to vote, at faculty meetings) in written form before, during, or immediately (within 24 hours) after the meeting.

D. A proposal being introduced under prior presentation may be discussed at that meeting, but discussion is limited to matters of intent, information, and clarification, and should not lead to debate for or against the proposal. The Chair is obligated to remind speakers of this tradition when necessary.

E. The proposal may not be voted on nor may amendments to it be introduced while it is under prior presentation.

F. The presenter is under no obligation at the next meeting, either to move the proposal in the form which it was originally submitted or to move its adoption.

Prior presentation merely brings before the Faculty the entire category or area to which the proposal pertains. If the presenter chooses to modify the proposal, he or she is required to publish the new draft before the meeting at which the matter is being moved or to make additions and deletions orally before making the motion. If the presenter chooses not to move the proposal, he or she should inform the Dean and withdraw the proposal from the agenda.

3. Changes in courses, majors, and minors
The adoption of new courses and the deletion of existing courses, as well as any change in an existing major and minor, are not automatically brought before the faculty. The Committee on Academic Affairs publishes the adoptions and deletions of courses and changes in existing majors and minors approved by the Committee and distributes them to the faculty. They will be considered in effect without faculty action unless one or more full-time members of the faculty request faculty consideration. Such request must be in writing and must include an explanation of the request for the review. The request must be submitted to the Chair of the Committee on Academic Affairs within five class days after notice has been distributed. Faculty members making requests for faculty consideration may choose to remain anonymous. The explanations for such requests shall be shared prior to faculty consideration with the sponsors of the proposed changes. The Chair of the Committee on Academic Affairs shall summarize the explanations at the time of faculty consideration. Consideration of changes in courses, majors, and minors shall be placed on the agenda of the faculty meeting without prior presentation.

The Subcommittee on Academic Programs shall be informed by the Registrar of changes in the title and description of existing courses. Although these minor types of changes are not subject to subcommittee or faculty approval, the subcommittee may wish to discuss the change with the department.

The faculty as a whole must approve the adoption or deletion of all major and minor fields of study, including interdisciplinary majors and minors, if they are to appear on a student’s official transcript. “Concentrations” or “Programs” are not majors but unofficial series of electives which may, however, be developed into “interdisciplinary majors” for the Bachelor of Arts or Bachelor of Special Studies, or “concentrations” in the Bachelor of Special Studies curriculum.

4. Voting

A. Decisions at faculty meetings are normally attained by voice vote.

B. If the voice vote is indecisive, the Chair or any individual member may request a division of the house, which will be conducted either by a show of hands or by the members standing, as counted by at least two tellers, the totals reported to the faculty and appearing in the minutes.

C. In rare matters of an exquisitely important or sensitive nature the voting may be by secret ballot. In such cases the ballots will be distributed and collected at the faculty meeting. The totals in faculty elections are not made public, although nominees have the right to be informed privately at their request. The vote totals in other secret ballots are made public, as with voting by a division of the house.

D. The method of voting is a decision to be made by the Chair; such decision may be appealed by normal parliamentary procedures.

F. Under any of the methods of voting, individual members may request the Secretary to record their vote as being for or against.

5. Faculty Elections
A. The Committee on Committees will conduct all nominations and elections leading to the appointment of faculty members to Committees of the Faculty.

B. In years when the term of office begins in an even-numbered year, the order of elections shall be: Chair of the Academic Affairs Committee; Chair of the Student Life Committee; one member of the Reappointment, Tenure and Promotion Subcommittee who shall become vice-chair during his or her second year on the subcommittee; a second member of the Reappointment, Tenure and Promotion Subcommittee; one member of the Faculty Salary Subcommittee; two members of the Committee on Committees; and all remaining faculty committee positions. In years when the term of office begins in an odd-numbered year: Chair of the Committee on Administration; Chair of the Committee on Committees; one member of the Reappointment, Tenure and Promotion Subcommittee who shall become vice-chair during his or her second year on the subcommittee; a second member of the Reappointment, Tenure and Promotion Subcommittee; one member of the Faculty Salary Committee; one member of the Committee on Committees; and all remaining faculty committee positions.

C. Normally nominations and elections will be conducted online, using a secure balloting system. The election administrator will be the Chair of the Committee on Committees, or, in her/his absence, another member of that committee. Only members of the Committee on Committees will have access to voting data. If circumstances warrant, elections and/or nominations may be carried out at faculty meeting using paper ballots.

D. Faculty members who wish to do so may send their selections directly by secure email or by signed paper ballot to the Chair of the Committee on Committees. In all cases the confidentiality of voters will be preserved to the fullest extent compatible with the election process. The totals in faculty elections are not made public, although nominees have the right to be informed privately at their request.

E. All elections or calls for nominations will be announced by e-mail to eligible voters. The announcements will contain information on such matters as the purpose of the ballot, eligibility requirements, and lists of faculty members expected to be on sabbatical in the upcoming year or continuing in elected positions. In the case of elections a list of those who declined to have their names placed on the ballot will also be provided. Each faculty member may make up to three nominations for each position to be filled.

F. The Committee on Committees shall contact those who receive the highest number of votes in the nomination process and obtain their consent to have their names placed on the ballot. Faculty members should recognize their obligation to serve. If however, for whatever reason, a faculty member declines nomination, the Committee on Committees shall contact the person with the next highest number of nominations and ask whether that faculty member wishes to be placed on the ballot. This procedure shall be repeated until a slate has been formed consisting of twice as many candidates as there are positions to be filled, except that, in the case of a tie for the last position, all those tied shall be included. Faculty members may vote for as many candidates as there are positions to be filled. A period of at least 3 business days (Monday-Friday) will elapse between the announcement of an election, or a call for nominations, and the deadline for voting.

G. Results will be distributed by e-mail within two days following that deadline. On the first ballot and on each subsequent ballot if no candidate receives the majority of the votes, the candidate with the lowest number of votes will be dropped. The first candidate (or candidates) receiving a majority will be elected.

H. When all committee positions individually subject to the vote of the faculty have been filled, the Committee on Committees will present a slate of appointments to non-elected positions. The faculty will be asked for approval of this slate by the end of Block Eight. The motion to approve the nominees may not be amended from the floor.

I. In the rare and unusual situation in which a Committee of the Faculty is in need during the academic year of a replacement for a member who had been individually elected by the faculty, the procedure described in sections A, C, D, E, F, and G (above) will be followed. Those faculty members already serving in individually elected positions on faculty committees, as well as those serving as chairs of faculty subcommittees, will be ineligible for election as replacement. When a Committee of the Faculty or a Committee of the College is in need during the academic year of a replacement for a slated member, the Committee on Committees may appoint a replacement with that individual’s consent.

II. THE COMMITTEE SYSTEM

COMMITTEE TYPES

Faculty members may be selected to serve on any of the following types of committees:

- Committees of the Faculty
- Committees of the College
- Ad Hoc Committees
- Advisory Committees

COMMITTEE ORGANIZATION

The following structure is valid for all types of committees listed above as well as for subcommittees.
1. The chair has the following duties:

A. to call and preside over the meetings of the committee
B. to plan the work of the committee for the year and to propose that plan to the committee
C. to see that committee rules are enforced
D. to appoint personnel to subcommittees (other than standing subcommittees)
E. to coordinate and monitor the work of all subcommittees
F. to report to the faculty (or other body of the college) for the committee
G. to vote in committee when that vote would make a difference in the result, i.e., to vote to create a tie (and thus defeat the motion), or to vote to break a tie (and thus assure the passage of the motion).

Some committees are given a vice-chair, who performs the duties of the chair in the absence of the chair, and such other duties as are specified in the description of the committee or are assigned by the chair. Other committees, at their discretion, may select a vice-chair from among their members.

2. Each chair shall designate a secretary for the keeping of permanent records, copies of which shall be deposited with the faculty secretary in the West Science Building. This role may rotate or may be served by someone who is not on the committee.

3. Ex officio members have all the rights and privileges but none of the obligations of membership. They may speak and vote when present, but their presence or absence is not counted in determining the quorum. They need not accept an assignment as secretary or an assignment to a subcommittee.

4. Consultants are those with particular expertise of value to a committee. They attend all meetings of the committee to which they are assigned, and participate in discussion, but they do not vote. Their presence or absence is not counted in a quorum. In addition to assigned consultants, a committee may invite anyone from time to time as desired to meet with the committee and share expertise.

5. During absences of less than a semester, committee members are not replaced. In the absence of the chair, and vice-chair, the committee should select a chair pro tempore.

6. There is no one precise date during the summer when the terms of committee membership expire, and it is customary for committees which must meet over the summer to include both outgoing as well as incoming members. If the committee is discussing old business, then the outgoing chair presides; if new business, then the incoming chair.

7. A quorum consists of a presiding officer plus one-half of the regular members of a committee or subcommittee.

8. Unless otherwise specified, committees operate according to Robert’s Rules of Order, Revised.

9. Whenever a committee recommends a policy for adoption by the faculty, it is the responsibility of the chair to communicate, either orally or in writing, the proposal, a record of the vote, and rationale for the proposal. Reports of minority views are always appropriate and often helpful.

COMMITTEES OF THE FACULTY

The committees of the Cornell College faculty have those investigative, legislative, and administrative functions and powers which have been delegated to them by faculty action. These committees may establish courses of action, operational procedures, and working principles which are within the scope of the enabling faculty legislation.

Faculty committees submit proposals, that is, requests for faculty legislation or changes in existing faculty legislation, only to the faculty. They may also submit reports and recommendations which do not require faculty action. When a faculty committee submits a report or recommendation to other bodies of the college, the substance of the recommendation should also be communicated to the faculty. When appropriate, the reasons for the recommendation, or the vote in the committee, may be given. The general principle is that a faculty committee should not act on behalf of the faculty without informing the faculty of the nature of its action.

When a faculty committee submits a proposal to the faculty, the proposal shall be placed on the agenda of the next regularly scheduled faculty meeting by the chair, who shall move its approval. This motion needs no second. Reports and recommendations of the faculty committees are not necessarily placed on the faculty’s agenda. Individual faculty members may do so if they wish.

REGULATIONS GOVERNING STANDING COMMITTEES AND SUBCOMMITTEES OF THE FACULTY

1. Rules

   a. The elections must be scheduled so that the final slate of nominations from the Committee on Committees can be acted upon by the faculty by the end of Block Eight.

   b. A faculty member nominated and elected by the full faculty to a non-renewable committee position is ineligible for election to a successive term of any length even if he/she does not complete his/her elected term.

   c. No faculty member may hold more than one of the fourteen positions nominated and elected by the full faculty.

   d. Faculty members cannot be assigned to the Academic Affairs Committee if they will be serving on the Administration Committee or the Committee on Committees. A faculty member elected to the Administration Committee or the Committee on Committees and currently serving on Academic Affairs may complete the normal period of service on that committee.

   e. The Committee on Committees will follow, in so far as possible, a regular pattern of rotation in its nominations of faculty to serve on committees.
f. Committee service is the responsibility of all members of the faculty. It is the function of the Committee on Committees to decide who does not serve on a committee. Release from committee service will be alternated to follow the usual principle of distributing the work load as evenly as possible. Faculty may request “no assignment” as a preference but should list several committee preferences for their own protection.

2. Student Representatives

a. Committees of the Faculty are augmented by student representatives appointed by the Student Senate to serve for one academic year. These student representatives are non-voting members of their committees; however, their opinion is recorded separately by the chair of the committee, and they are permitted to address the faculty during the faculty meetings at which their committee’s proposal is being discussed. In addition, two students appointed by the Student Senate to serve as general representatives of the student body are allowed to speak at any time during a faculty meeting. No students vote at faculty meetings.

b. Students serve as full members with full voting privileges on other types of committees, such as Committees of the College.

c. There are three student members on the faculty’s Committee to Select a Dean of the College and the Committee to Select a President of the College. These are the President of the Student Senate, or designate, and two other students selected in the manner determined by the Student Government. These students are full members of these committees with full voting rights. In the case of the Committee to Select a President, the students may submit separate recommendations.

I. Committee on Academic Affairs

A. Functions

1) Provides for a continuing evaluation of the overall educational program of the college in any or all of its aspects.

2) Meets regularly to receive reports and recommendations from subcommittees, other committees, and other interested parties. Recommendations from subcommittees should include the proposal, a record of the vote, and rationale. In cases of division, a written minority vote is in order. From time to time, the committee may request from the Registrar a report on the enrollment cap and bidding system. When such a report is requested, the committee will specify the reason for the request.

3) Submits proposals and recommendations for the improvement of the college’s educational programs to the faculty or to those administrative or departmental bodies which have the authority and responsibility for implementing such proposals or recommendations.
4) Publishes course changes and changes in existing majors approved by the committee and distributes them to the faculty. The vote of the committee on each change will be included in the notice published.

Course changes and changes in existing majors published by the committee will be considered in effect without faculty action unless one full-time member of the faculty requests faculty consideration. Such requests must be in writing and must be given to the Chair of the Committee on Academic Affairs within five class days after notice of the committee’s action has been distributed to the faculty.

B. Structure

1) The chair shall be elected by the faculty by secret ballot and majority vote to serve a two-year, non-renewable term. The chair must have three or more years of service as a full-time member of the teaching faculty.

2) All full-time members of the teaching faculty who are members of the standing subcommittees listed below shall be members of this committee except those who serve their subcommittees as members ex officio. (Note-for the purposes of this document a “full-time member of the teaching faculty” is defined as a full-time employee of the college whose regular assigned duties include the teaching of one or more courses every year.)

3) The Dean of the College shall be a member ex officio.

4) There will be three student representatives appointed by the student government.

5) The Registrar, the College Librarian, and the Chair of the Writing Program Committee shall serve the committee as consultants.

C. Standing Subcommittees

1) Academic Standing

   a. Functions

      i. Determines the academic standing of students as well as that of Cornell students transferring as juniors or seniors from one degree program to another.

      ii. Reviews the academic achievement of all students at each grading period. The subcommittee is empowered to:

          • Place students on academic report, academic probation, or probationary suspension and to remove students from report, probation, or probationary suspension.
• Suspend temporarily or dismiss permanently students for unsatisfactory academic progress towards a degree.

iii. Passes judgment on:

• Requests for the transfer of credits, including summer school credits.

• Applications for participation in off-campus programs and group projects.

• Other petitions regarding academic regulations submitted by students.

• Requests to be enrolled in courses already at their enrollment limit.

iv. Administers the selection and recognition of students earning commencement honors, the freshman, sophomore, and junior achievement awards, and certain other academic awards.

v. Makes reports and recommendations as appropriate to the full committee.

b. Structure

ADVISORY COMMITTEES

>Note-The following applies only to Advisory Committees which include faculty members.>

Advisory committees are temporary or permanent committees established by the President of the College, the Dean of the College, the Vice President for Business Affairs, the Vice President for Student Affairs, or the Dean of Students. This administrator determines the function, the size, and the structure of each committee, and names the administrator to be advised. Advisory Committees shall not be established to consider matters that are among the responsibilities of the standing committees of the faculty or college. Advisory committees do not legislate; rather, they meet irregularly to advise a particular administrative officer in the performance of his or her duties.

In all cases the administrator being advised is the chair of the advisory committee. Faculty members of advisory committees are appointed by the administrator establishing the committee after consultation with the Committee on Committees. The administrator establishing the committee shall also select one of the faculty members to serve as vice-chair. The duties of the vice-chair shall be (1) to perform the duties of the chair in the latter’s absence, and (2) to submit an annual report of the committee’s activities to the chair of the Committee on Committees. The chair of the Committee on Committees shall request annual reports from the vice-chairs of all advisory committees each spring.

When an Advisory Committee is in need of a replacement faculty member, the Committee on Committees will suggest the names of possible replacements to the chair of the Advisory Committee.49

Administrative members, if any, are appointed by the administrator who establishes the committee. Student members, if any, should be appointed in consultation with the student government.

The Committee on Committees shall distribute annually a list of advisory committees and their membership to the faculty. If an advisory committee does not meet at least once a year, it is considered defunct and is automatically dissolved.

<Note-Committees established in conformity with Procedures: Selecting Administrative Officers with Faculty Status shall be considered advisory committees and be established according to this format.>
This section is updated periodically in consultation with and on the authority of the President of the College.

IV. PERSONNEL POLICIES

Academic Freedom

Cornell College policy in regard to academic freedom and tenure follows in principle the 1940 Statement of Principles on Academic Freedom and Tenure and the 1970 interpretation of the American Association of University Professors and the Association of American Colleges adopted as follows:

Teachers are entitled to full freedom in research and in the publication of the results, subject to the adequate performance of their other academic duties; but research for pecuniary return should be based upon an understanding with the authorities of the institution.

Teachers are entitled to freedom in the classroom in discussing their subject, but they should be careful not to introduce into their teaching controversial matter which has no relationship to their subject. The intent of this statement is not to discourage what is “controversial.” Controversy is at the heart of the free academic inquiry which this entire statement is designed to foster. This passage serves to underscore the need, however, for teachers to avoid persistently intruding material which has no relation to their subject.

College or university teachers are citizens, members of a learned profession, and officers of an educational institution. When they speak or write as citizens, they should be free from institutional censorship or discipline, but their special position in the community imposes special obligations. As men and women of learning and as educational officers, they should remember that the public may judge their profession and their institution by their utterances. Hence they should at all times be accurate, should exercise appropriate restraint, should show respect for the opinions of others, and should make every effort to indicate that they are not institutional representatives.

Professional Ethics

1. Introduction

This code of professional ethics is viewed as a broad guideline for faculty conduct. It is not designed to cover every situation in which an ethical question is involved but rather tries to provide a general set of standards that can help the professor in acting responsibly within the College. In the end, the effectiveness of this Statement rests with the willingness of the faculty to accept its obligation as presented in this Statement. This Statement, necessarily presented in terms of the ideal, sets forth those general standards that serve as a reminder of the variety of obligations assumed by all members of the profession. This policy follows in principle the AAUP Statement of Professional Ethics which was adopted at its 73rd Annual Meeting, June 1987.

In the enforcement of ethical standards, the academic profession differs from those of law and medicine, whose associations act to assure the integrity of members engaged in private practice. In the academic profession, the individual institution of higher learning provides this assurance and so should normally handle questions concerning propriety of conduct within its own framework by reference to a faculty group. If any alleged offense is deemed sufficiently serious to raise the possibility of dismissal, the procedures stated in the Faculty Handbook should be followed.

2. The Statement

A. The Faculty of Cornell College, guided by a deep conviction of the worth and dignity of the advancement of knowledge, recognize the special responsibilities placed upon us. Our primary responsibility to our subject is to seek and to state the truth as we see it. To this end we devote our energies to developing and improving our scholarly competence. We accept the obligation to exercise critical self-discipline and judgment in using, extending, and transmitting knowledge. We practice intellectual honesty. Although we may follow subsidiary interests, these interests must never seriously hamper or compromise our freedom of inquiry.

B. As teachers, we encourage the free pursuit of learning in our students. We hold before them the best scholarly and ethical standards of our discipline. We demonstrate respect for the student as an individual, and adhere to our proper role as intellectual guide and counselor. We make every reasonable effort to foster honest academic conduct and to assure that our evaluation of students reflects their true merit. We respect the confidential nature of the relationship between professor and student. We avoid any exploitation, harassment, or discriminatory treatment of students and acknowledge significant assistance from them. We protect their academic freedom.

C. As colleagues, we have obligations that derive from common membership in the community of scholars. We do not discriminate against or harass colleagues. We respect and defend the free inquiry of our associates. In the exchange of criticism and ideas we show due respect for the opinions of others. We acknowledge our academic debts and strive to be objective in our professional judgment of our colleagues. We accept our share of faculty responsibilities for the governance of Cornell College.

D. As members of our institution, we seek above all to be effective teachers and scholars. Although we observe the stated regulations of the institution, provided they do not contravene academic freedom, we maintain our right to criticize and seek revision. We determine the amount and character of the work we do outside our institution with due regard to our paramount responsibility within it. When considering the interruption or termination of our service, we recognize the effect of our decision upon the program of the institution and give due notice of our intentions.

E. As members of our community, we have the rights and obligations of any citizen. We measure the urgency of these obligations in the light of our responsibilities to our subject, to our students, to our profession, and to our institution. When we speak or act as a private person, we avoid creating the impression that we speak or act for Cornell College. As citizens engaged in a profession that depends upon freedom for its health and integrity, we have a particular obligation to promote conditions of free inquiry and to further public understanding of academic freedom.
3. Implementation

Faculty, administrators, and students who desire an interpretation of this Statement in light of contemplated action or an action taken which is believed to violate this Statement should take their concerns first to the Dean of the College. If a satisfactory resolution cannot be found by this informal means, parties to the discussion may refer their concern to the Committee on Reappointment, Tenure, and Promotion for clarification and decision. The Committee will render a decision on the ethical nature of the issue. It will report to the Faculty only the issues raised and the conclusions reached.

Statement of Ethical Conduct

All employees of Cornell College shall:

1. Conduct College business with honesty and integrity, striving for excellence in all aspects of their work.

2. Maintain the highest level of personal conduct and ethics, including:
   a. Respecting the rights and views of students and fellow employees.
   b. Presenting information honestly and accurately, never plagiarizing or falsely representing personal or professional information.
   c. Maintaining the confidentiality of information to which they have access and using it only in the discharge of official duties.

3. Be familiar with and uphold laws and regulations related to their jobs and the College’s activities, and adhere to all College policies and procedures.

4. Report unethical, illegal, or fraudulent activities either directly to one’s division head or the Director of Human Resources or through the Whistleblower Policy.

Whistleblower Policy

1. Policy Statement

Cornell College affirms its dedication to the highest standards of ethical conduct, professionalism, and high quality in our education and administration. The College welcomes and encourages the reporting of policy and compliance concerns. Reporting assists us in our obligation to embrace the concepts noted above as well as to maintain compliance with all governmental laws and regulations as well as college policies. This policy applies to all employees (faculty, staff, student employees, and volunteers).

Fraudulent or Dishonest conduct is a deliberate act or failure to act with the intention of obtaining a material unauthorized benefit. Examples of such include, but are not limited to
• violation of law or government regulation;
• forgery or alteration of documents;
• unauthorized alteration or manipulation of computer files;
• fraudulent financial reporting;
• submitting fraudulent or improper expense account reporting, for example, manipulation of reimbursement expense forms for business transportation, meals and lodging;
• misappropriation or misuse of Cornell’s resources;
• authorizing or receiving compensation for goods not received or services not performed;
• authorizing or receiving compensation not earned.

A whistleblower is a Cornell employee who reports an activity that he/she considers to be illegal or dishonest to one or more of the parties detailed in this policy. The employee is not responsible for investigating the activity or for determining fault or corrective measures.

2. Reporting Procedure

In order for the college to take necessary internal corrective action, an employee is encouraged to report, preferably in writing, a disclosure of any activity described above as follows:

A. If a student or group of students is accused, the matter should be reported to the Dean of Students.

B. If a faculty member is accused, the Subcommittee on Reappointment, Tenure and Promotion should be notified. They shall hear the case and make appropriate recommendations to the Dean of the College and the President.

C. If a maintenance person is accused, the Vice President for Business Affairs will investigate the matter, with a union steward present during any questioning of the accused. If any disciplinary measures are taken, the accused may follow the grievance and/or disciplinary procedures in the union contract.

D. If a member of the administrative or hourly staff is accused, the matter should be reported to the Director of Human Resources.

E. If the Director of Human Resources is accused, the matter should be reported to the Vice President for Business Affairs.

F. If a Vice President is accused, the matter should be reported to the President.

G. If the President is accused, the matter will be referred to the Chair of the Board of Trustees.

H. If members of contracted organizations employed by the College, e.g., security services, food services, book store, are accused, contractual procedures will be followed.
The disclosure should be factual and contain as much specific information as possible. If an employee is unwilling or unable to put a disclosure in writing, he/she should report the activity orally to the appropriate college official who will prepare a written summary of the individual’s disclosure, and provide a copy to the individual for accuracy and completeness.

All allegations will be investigated by the appropriate college official. All college employees are expected to fully cooperate in the investigation of the allegations. The appropriate corrective action, up to and including termination, will be administered if the investigation finds that an employee engaged in activity as described above.

3. False Allegations

The employee must exercise sound judgment to avoid making baseless allegations. An employee who intentionally files a false report of wrongdoing may be subject to discipline up to and including termination

4. Protections

Whistleblower protections are provided in two important areas – confidentiality and retaliation. Insofar as possible, the confidentiality of the individual reporting will be maintained. However, identity may have to be disclosed to conduct a thorough investigation, to comply with the law and to provide accused individuals their legal rights of defense. If identity disclosure becomes necessary, the employee will be notified. Cornell will not retaliate against a whistleblower. This commitment includes, but is not limited to, protection from retaliation in the form of an adverse employment action such as termination, compensation decreases, or poor work assignments and threats of physical harm. Any reporting individual who believes he/she is experiencing retaliation must contact the Director of Human Resources immediately. All complaints will be investigated promptly and with discretion, and all information obtained will be handled on a “need to know” basis. Any individual found to be retaliating will be disciplined, up to and including termination in accordance with established procedures. The right of a reporting individual for protection against retaliation does not include immunity vis-à-vis any personal wrongdoing that is alleged and investigated.

Questions should be directed to the Director of Human Resources (X 4243).

Employee Conflict of Interest Policy and Procedures

1. Policy

In an effort to preserve institutional integrity, accountability, and fairness, it is appropriate that institutions have conflict of interest policies and procedures. It is the policy of Cornell College that all its employees avoid both conflicts of interest and the appearance of conflicts of interest whenever possible. Since it is unlikely that all conflicts of interest can be avoided, such conflicts should not inevitably disqualify one from service or employment. Rather, certain safeguarding procedures should be followed, including disclosure of potential or extant conflicts and recusal from discussions and decisions in areas of conflict. Sensitivity to these issues and a proactive stance in dealing with them is a responsibility of all Cornell employees.
A conflict of interest exists when the institution’s employees have an outside interest that has the potential of being at variance with the best interests of the institution. This includes, but is not limited to

- conflicting financial interests
- use of confidential information for personal gain
- unauthorized disclosure of confidential information
- use of institutional time or facilities for personal purposes
- supervision or evaluation of family members or those with whom one has romantic relationships

If you are unclear about whether any particular behavior would constitute a conflict of interest, consult with

- your direct supervisor or
- your division head or
- the Director of Human Resources.

These persons can also offer advice on how to avoid a conflict or, if unavoidable, how to recuse oneself from a conflict of interest situation.

2. Reporting and Implementation

All members of the Cornell community are responsible for helping the college avoid conflict of interest problems. Apparent conflicts should be reported so that they can be investigated and, if verified, appropriate actions can be taken. The Director of Human Resources shall direct reports of conflict of interest to the appropriate supervisor or division head or, in the case of the President, to the Chair of the Board of Trustees.

The college will not retaliate against employees for reporting actual or possible violations of the policy. Consistent with the college’s Whistleblower Policy, the identity of those providing information about possible violations will be protected within legal limits. Individuals who take retaliatory action may be subject to discipline, consistent with applicable college regulations and processes.

Reported violations will be investigated by the appropriate office of the college, depending on the nature of the violation. Disciplinary measures may be taken, consistent with applicable college regulations and processes.

Attempts to discredit others through inappropriate use of this policy are not permitted; individuals doing so will be considered for disciplinary action, consistent with applicable college regulations and processes.

Anti-Discrimination Policy

1. General Statement of Policy
Cornell College affirms the right of its students, faculty, and staff to live, work, and study in an environment free from discrimination or harassment on the basis of age, color, disability, gender identity or expression, national origin, race, religion, creed, sex, sexual orientation, genetic information, pregnancy, as well as any other characteristics protected by state, federal, or local law. Neither may applicants for employment or enrollment be discriminated against based on the above characteristics.

Prohibited conduct includes but is not limited to unwelcome verbal, non-verbal, physical, or other conduct relating to an individual's age, color, disability, gender identity or expression, national origin, race, religion, creed, sex, sexual orientation, genetic information, pregnancy, or any other characteristic protected by state, federal, or local law, which has the purpose or effect of unreasonably interfering with an individual's work or academic performance or participation in College-sponsored programs or activities, or creates an intimidating, hostile, or offensive working, learning, social or residential environment.

Specific policies on affirmative action in employment (section 2) and sexual harassment and sexual misconduct (section 3) are delineated below.

These policies shall not be construed to discourage legitimate intellectual inquiry, debate, discussion or advocacy on the Cornell campus consistent with principles of academic freedom and free speech rights.

Discriminatory and harassing conduct will not be tolerated and should not be ignored by victims or witnesses. Discriminatory or harassing behavior is a serious violation of community standards and may result in disciplinary action up to and including termination of employment. Any such conduct should be reported promptly. Reporting procedures are outlined in section 4, below.

The College’s policies on discrimination, harassment, sexual harassment, and sexual misconduct apply not only to College faculty, staff, and students, but also to vendors, contractors, and third parties, whether in person or via phone or computer. If a member of the College community believes that he or she has been subjected to prohibited conduct by a vendor, contractor, or third party, the community member should report the violation.

Cornell College faculty members and most staff are not "mandatory reporters" of child abuse and are not legally obligated to report information on known or suspected cases of child abuse, nor are faculty members or staff legally required by Iowa law to report sexual harassment or discrimination involving Cornell College students. However, faculty members and staff are strongly urged to share any such information involving possible abuse, discrimination or harassment, as outlined in this policy, with the Dean of the College, the Dean of Students, or other staff who can arrange support services for the student.

2. Affirmative Action Policy Statement

Cornell College is an Equal Employment Opportunity employer. It is against Cornell College’s policy for any employee to discriminate against an applicant for employment on the basis of age, color, disability, gender identity or expression, national origin, race, religion, creed, sex, sexual orientation, genetic information, pregnancy, as well as any other characteristic protected by state, federal, or local law.

Cornell College is an Affirmative Action employer and is committed to recruiting and retaining a diverse workforce through specific guidelines, delineated in the Affirmative Action Program, regarding employment searches, diversity training, and ongoing assessment of recruitment and Cornell College’s Equal Employment Opportunity/Affirmative Action policy is consistent with guidelines set forth in Iowa Code Section 261.9. As part of the college’s equal employment opportunity policy, Cornell College will also take affirmative action as called for by applicable laws and Executive Orders to ensure that minority group individuals, females, disabled veterans, recently separated veterans, other protected veterans, Armed Forces service medal veterans, and qualified disabled persons are introduced into our workforce and considered for promotional opportunities.

Employees and applicants shall not be subjected to harassment, intimidation, or any type of retaliation because they have (1) filed a complaint; (2) assisted or participated in an investigation, compliance review, hearing, or any other activity related to the administration of any federal, state, or local law requiring equal employment opportunity; (3) opposed any act or practice made unlawful by any federal, state, or local law requiring equal opportunity; or (4) exercised any other legal right protected by federal, state, or local law requiring equal opportunity.

The above-mentioned policies shall be periodically brought to the attention of supervisors and shall be appropriately administered. It is the responsibility of each supervisor at Cornell to ensure affirmative implementation of these policies to avoid any discrimination in employment. All employees are expected to recognize these policies and cooperate with their implementation. Violation of these policies is a disciplinary offense.

An Affirmative Action Officer coordinates affirmative action responsibilities. The Diversity Committee will work cooperatively with and make recommendations to the Affirmative Action Officer and the President on Cornell’s commitment to affirmative action, including policies and practices related to the recruitment and retention of a diverse faculty and staff.

3. Sexual Harassment and Misconduct Policy Statement

Cornell College affirms the right of its students, faculty, and staff to live, work, and study in an environment free from sexual harassment by or against any member of the community. Cornell College is also committed to providing a safe environment for minors, developmentally disabled persons, and vulnerable adults by ensuring they are not subjected to sexual misconduct by members of the campus community.

Sexual advances, requests for sexual favors, and other verbal or physical conduct of a sexual nature constitute harassment when:

- Submission to such conduct is made or threatened to be made, either explicitly or implicitly, a term or condition of an individual’s employment or education;
- Submission to or rejection of such conduct by an individual is used or threatened to be used as the basis for academic or employment decisions affecting that individual; or
- Such conduct has the purpose or effect of substantially interfering with an individual’s academic or professional performance or creating what a reasonable person would perceive as an intimidating, hostile, or offensive employment, education, or living environment.

Sexual violence is a form of sexual harassment, and complaints of sexual harassment due to sexual violence may be pursued whether or not criminal complaints are filed or prosecuted.
Sexual violence includes physical sexual acts perpetrated without a person’s consent or where a person is incapable of giving consent due to use of drugs and/or alcohol or to an intellectual or other disability. Some examples of sexual violence include rape, sexual assault, sexual battery, and sexual coercion.

*Concerns regarding the Director of Human Resources should be directed to the Vice President of Business Affairs
C. Investigation and Confidentiality

All reports describing conduct that is inconsistent with these policies will be promptly and thoroughly investigated. Complaints about violations of these policies will be handled discreetly, with facts made available only to those who need to know to investigate and resolve the matter. The Director of Human Resources will either be involved, or kept informed (unless he/she is accused, then the Vice President of Business Affairs will be involved). If a Vice-President is accused, the President will be involved. If the President is accused, the matter will be referred to the Chair of the Board of Trustees. Confidentiality will be maintained to the extent possible.

D. Resolution

If a complaint of discrimination, harassment, sexual harassment, or sexual misconduct is found to be substantiated, appropriate corrective action will follow, up to and including termination of employment. If the complaint involves a faculty member, the Subcommittee on Reappointment, Promotion, and Tenure will hear the case and make appropriate recommendations to the Dean and the President.

E. Retaliation Prohibited

Retaliation against any person who makes a bona fide report of discrimination or harassment, is accused of, or participates in an investigation, is strictly prohibited. Likewise, any retaliation against the individual’s family or friends, is strictly prohibited. Retaliation may involve behaviors such as defacing someone’s property, harassing them, or threatening them. Reports of retaliation will be investigated and, if substantiated, those perpetrating the retaliation will be disciplined, up to and including termination of employment. If the complaint involves a faculty member, the Subcommittee on Reappointment, Promotion, and Tenure will hear the case and make appropriate recommendations to the Dean and the President. Anyone experiencing any conduct that he or she believes to be retaliatory should immediately report it to one of the individuals listed above under “Reporting Violations”.

F. False Reporting

Cornell College will not tolerate intentional false reporting. It is a violation of college policy to make an intentionally false report of sexual harassment/misconduct, and it may also violate state criminal statutes and civil defamation laws. If a substantiated case of intentional false reporting occurs, the party involved will be disciplined, up to and including termination of employment. If a faculty member is involved, the Subcommittee on Reappointment, Promotion, and Tenure will hear the case and make appropriate recommendations to the Dean and the President.

G. Appeal Process

In the event the complainant or the accused is dissatisfied with the outcome of the investigation, the dissatisfied party should notify one of the individuals listed under “Reporting Violations” and an appeal committee will be convened. If the accused is a faculty member, the Faculty Grievance Committee shall hear the case and report to the President. If the accused is a staff member, a committee consisting of the Director of Human Resources, the Dean of Students, and the Dean of the College shall hear the case. If any committee member is involved as a part of the alleged violation the President will appoint an alternate. Final appeal rests with the President.
Consensual Relationships Policy

Romantic relationships or sexual activity between adults that might be appropriate in other circumstances have inherent dangers when they occur between a faculty member, or staff and any person for whom he or she has a professional responsibility. These dangers can include: that a student or employee may feel coerced into an unwanted relationship because he or she fears that refusal to enter into the relationship will adversely affect his or her education or employment; that conflicts of interest may arise when a faculty member, supervisor, or other member of the College community is required to evaluate the work of or make personnel or academic decisions with respect to an individual with whom he or she is having a romantic relationship; that students or employees may perceive that a fellow student or co-worker who is involved in a romantic relationship will receive an unfair advantage; and that if the relationship ends in a way that is not amicable, either or both of the parties may wish to take action to injure the other party.

Faculty members or staff who have professional responsibility for other individuals should therefore be aware that romantic relationships or sexual activity involving a student or employee for whom they have such a responsibility may raise questions regarding the mutuality of the relationship and may lead to charges of sexual harassment. In this context, an individual has “professional responsibility” for another individual at the College if he or she performs functions including, but not limited to, teaching, counseling, coaching, grading, advising, evaluating, hiring, supervising, or making decisions or recommendations that confer benefits such as promotions, financial aid awards, or other remuneration, or that may impact other academic or employment opportunities.

For the reasons stated above, romantic relationships and sexual activity between faculty members or staff and those employees for whom they have professional responsibility are strongly discouraged, and romantic relationships and sexual activity between faculty members or staff and students to whom they are not married or in a formal domestic partnership are prohibited. If, notwithstanding this policy, a relationship prohibited by this policy develops, the Faculty or Staff member should immediately disclose it to his or her Divisional Vice President, who should take steps to address any conflict of interest posed by the relationship. The Divisional Vice President will determine, in consultation with the Director of Human Resources, what corrective steps will need to be taken. Violation or failure to promptly disclose and correct a violation of this policy is grounds for disciplinary action.

On occasion, an employee will have a dating, romantic, or sexual relationship, or a marriage, with an individual who then becomes a student, or an individual with a pre-existing relationship with a student will become an employee. It is the obligation of the employee to disclose that relationship or marriage to the Director of Human Resources. It is the obligation of the Director of Human Resources, in consultation with the appropriate Divisional Vice President, to take the steps that he or she deems necessary to insure that the educational experience of the student, and other students in the College, is not materially affected by the dating, romantic, sexual, or marital relationship. Since individual cases may vary, the Director of Human Resources has discretion to consider specific circumstances—the nature of the relationship, the specifics of the student’s academic program, the employee’s duties, and constraints on the College—in fashioning these steps. The steps can range from no action, to the recusal of the employee from matters involving the student, to changes in the employee’s duties.
Faculty Grievance Procedure

Cornell College has a strong tradition of collegiality, which encourages informal settlement of disagreements and disputes about institutional sanctions levied against faculty members. However, it is important to provide formal procedures for instances when faculty members feel aggrieved and cannot gain satisfactory resolution through informal routes. This policy provides a procedure to address faculty grievances not addressed elsewhere. In particular, this policy covers such matters as appeals of decisions by the Reappointment, Tenure and Promotion Subcommittee or appeals of sanctions short of termination recommended by that subcommittee or levied by the Dean of the College.

A. Committee: The Grievance Committee shall be advisory to the president—or, in the case of a grievance against the president, advisory to the Board of Trustees—and shall consist of the following three individually elected faculty officials: the chair of the Committee on Administration, who shall act as chair; the chair of the Faculty Salary Subcommittee; and the chair of the Committee on Committees. If any member of the Grievance Committee is party to the case or elects not to serve, that member shall be replaced by a tenured member of the faculty selected by the Committee on Committees.

B. Procedure: Within 120 days of the alleged injury, the complainant faculty member shall communicate in writing to the chair of the Grievance Committee the nature of the grievance and the remedy sought, and shall provide appropriate supporting documentation. Upon receipt of such written complaint the chair will convene the Committee. The Grievance Committee will conduct such inquiry as it deems warranted, and it may consult with such persons as the dean, the president, and/or the Affirmative Action officer. It shall afford the individual or individuals whose actions are the object of the grievance an opportunity to respond. The committee shall determine whether the grievance has merit, and it shall communicate its findings and recommendations in writing to the affected parties and to the president or, at the Committee’s discretion, to the Board of Trustees.

Smokefree Campus

1. Policy

In accordance with the State of Iowa Smokefree Air Act, smoking is prohibited at Cornell College. All indoor and outdoor spaces are smoke free.

This law means that smoking is prohibited on all college property, including inside and outside of our buildings, at athletic venues, and in the parking lots. The law also restricts smoking inside of vehicles in parking lots. Signage has been posted on building entrances denoting our smokefree status.

Questions pertaining to this policy should be directed to your supervisor, division vice president, or Director of Human Resources (X 4243). It is the responsibility of the Director of Human Resources to keep this policy up-to-date in conjunction with any changes in the legal requirements. This policy applies to faculty, staff, students and anyone visiting the Cornell College campus.
2. Reporting and Implementation

We encourage each person to feel comfortable addressing someone who is smoking in an improper place by asking them kindly to stop. If you are not comfortable with this, or the person doesn’t respond kindly to you, then feel free to contact Campus Security at 895-4299.

In order for the college to take necessary internal corrective action, an employee is encouraged to report, preferably in writing, a disclosure of the prohibited smoking as follows:

A. If a student group or group of students is accused, the matter should be reported to the Dean of Students

B. If a faculty member is accused, the matter should be reported to the Vice President for Academic Affairs and Dean of the College.

C. If a member of the staff or administration is accused, the matter should be reported to the Director of Human Resources.

D. If members of contracted organizations employed by the College, e.g., security services, food services, book store, are accused, the matter should be reported to the Director of Human Resources. Working in conjunction with the divisional vice president, contractual procedures will be followed.

The disclosure should be factual and contain as much specific information as possible. If an employee is unwilling or unable to put a disclosure in writing, he/she should report the activity orally to the appropriate college official. It is important to note the date, the time, and the place the prohibited smoking occurred.

The employee must exercise sound judgment to avoid making baseless allegations. An employee who intentionally files a false report of wrongdoing may be subject to discipline up to and including termination, in accordance with established disciplinary procedures.

Description of the Several Faculty Ranks

The following statements are a description of and basic criteria for the various ranks:

An instructor should hold a master’s degree or its equivalent. Beginning with the rank of instructor, the faculty member becomes a voting member of the faculty, is eligible for membership in committees of the College, and begins to accumulate years towards the sabbatical leave program as well as consideration for tenure.

The assistant professor should hold a doctor’s degree or its equivalent, and should usually have had some teaching experience.

The associate professor should hold a doctor’s degree or its equivalent. Promotion to this rank will generally be concomitant with the granting of tenure. For faculty with the usual six year probationary period this occurs at the start of the seventh year. Initial appointment at this rank need not assume the granting of tenure.

The professor should hold a doctor’s degree or its equivalent. Anyone promoted to this rank should have tenure. Initial appointment at this rank need not assume the granting of tenure. Promotion to or initial appointment at this rank is a clear recognition of excellence in all four categories listed in the following section.

Criteria for Appointment, Salary Increment, Renewal, Tenure, and Promotion

The candidate for appointment, renewal of appointment, promotion, tenure, and salary increments at Cornell College shall be evaluated on the following criteria:

1. Excellence in Teaching -- (Teaching, the primary responsibility of the Cornell faculty, includes tutorial work, advising, and counseling of students as well as classroom presentation) as evidenced by the evaluation of students, colleagues, and administrators using the following criteria:
   a. Proficiency in the subject matter
   b. An ability to present the subject matter of the course in a clear and coherent manner
   c. An ability to communicate to students the sense of excitement involved in intellectual discovery
   d. Conscientiousness in fulfilling teaching responsibilities

2. Intellectual and Professional Stature -- as evidenced by:
   a. Advanced degrees
   b. Publications
   c. Off-campus professional activity and recognition
   d. Contribution to the overall intellectual and cultural life of the College community outside of normal teaching responsibilities

3. Commitment to the Liberal Arts -- as evidenced by:
   a. A commitment to knowledge, scholarship, and intellectual activity as goods in themselves
   b. An awareness of the relationship of the Educational Priorities and Outcomes to one’s discipline and to the pursuit of liberal studies
   c. A willingness to engage in activities designed to integrate the various academic programs of the College into a coherent whole.

4. Service -- as evidenced by:
   a. Contributions of time and energy to the department and committees of the College
   b. Contributions--other than normal advising responsibilities--to the intellectual, social, and personal welfare of the students of the College
c. An active involvement in the fostering of a lively sense of community spirit among all elements of the College constituency

d. Contributions to the welfare of the community at large

We recognize that there is a significant amount of interpretation among all four of these broad categories. Excellence in one is related to excellence in another.

Expectations and Evaluation of Faculty Members at Cornell College

General Objectives

The primary purpose of the evaluation of faculty members is to foster and maintain excellent performance. Cornell’s evaluation policies and procedures aim to improve professional effectiveness and to give encouragement by providing for members of the faculty a source of information regarding their impact on others and the perceptions others have of their professional activities. The procedures also offer to faculty members being reviewed an opportunity to inform the Reappointment, Tenure, and Promotion Subcommittee of their activities and achievements. The results of the evaluation should be of use to the RTP Subcommittee and administrative officials responsible for making personnel decisions at Cornell, and they should also aid faculty members in their professional growth.

General Criteria

The areas at issue in the evaluation process are (1) teaching and advising, (2) intellectual and professional stature, (3) commitment to the liberal arts, and (4) service. Since Cornell is an undergraduate institution, it is faculty members’ impact on students as teachers and advisors that is of most concern in the review process. In addition, the faculty is a community of scholars and artists, and institutional evaluation therefore attends also to the faculty members’ growth in their various disciplines. Moreover, because Cornell is a liberal arts college, there is an expectation that faculty will be purveyors of the liberal arts. Finally, since the successful conduct of College affairs requires extensive faculty participation, the evaluation takes into consideration the faculty members’ service in the institution and beyond.

While there is not and cannot be a precise formula for the relative weighting of performance in these areas as applied to all individuals, teaching is clearly the most important component with respect both to expectations for time and effort and to the value the College places upon such activity. Faculty members must be effective teachers to gain permanent employment at Cornell. Appropriately, evaluation at the Reappointment stage focuses primarily upon the character and potential of the faculty member’s teaching performance. At later stages of the evaluation process, substantial activity in other areas must augment continuing development of effective teaching in order to ensure successful progress toward tenure.

These guidelines indicate Cornell's institutional ideals and aspirations with respect to faculty performance, and faculty members are evaluated in light of their progress toward the general model of excellence which those ideals and aspirations imply. However, the College's commitment to academic freedom ensures that many variations on the theme of excellence are legitimate in our setting. In this connection, evaluators should keep in mind that faculty members are not expected to allocate time and energy equally to all categories of activity, and that whenever possible we wish to recognize particular strengths and individual mixes of the four major categories of evaluation.

1. Teaching and Advising

At Cornell, effective teaching inspires effective learning through the engagement of students with course materials, teachers, and other students. No check-list can sum up this enterprise; no one approach, style, or persona works for all. But some characteristics are recurrent, and suggestive.

Effective Cornell teachers typically model the active intellect; show enthusiasm for the subject matter; care passionately about teaching in all its dimensions and scholarship broadly conceived; and attend to students with understanding and respect. They work hard to convey the values, skills, and content of their discipline. They read their student audience; they facilitate student involvement; they challenge, criticize, and support. They try to use what is said and done in the classroom to give meaning to the moment, operating with authority, sensitivity, and dispatch.

In part, faculty members at Cornell learn how to be effective teachers by talking with colleagues, considering advice like that offered in Teaching at Cornell, and taking seriously both the various aspects of teaching and learning to be rated in student evaluation and the completed student evaluation forms themselves. Department chairs, RTP Subcommittee members, and the Dean of the College all have some responsibility for advising junior faculty and evaluating teaching performance, and the periodic reviews of faculty members address that issue in ways intended to be helpful to the candidate at whatever stage. However, the best way to learn how to be an effective teacher is, over and over, to think carefully about the learning situation--and then go into the classroom or laboratory or studio and teach.

In evaluating teaching effectiveness, the Reappointment, Tenure, and Promotion Subcommittee will examine evidence provided by the candidate, by other faculty members, staff and by students. The candidate will be asked to comment on her/his teaching performance as part of a comprehensive self-evaluation narrative. The faculty, staff, and the student body will be informed when faculty members are being reviewed and will be invited to submit statements to be considered in the evaluation process. The department chair and the other members of the department should provide additional information and perspective, and they will be asked to comment on the candidate's teaching as part of a comprehensive departmental review recommendation. The judgments of students will be available to the Subcommittee from uniform student evaluations, Senior Surveys, and any other student evaluation instruments used by the faculty member or Subcommittee.

Representatives from both the relevant department and the RTP Subcommittee will make class visitations as part of the review process and may also interview students. No judgment about student evaluation of an instructor's teaching performance will be based exclusively on standardized evaluation forms. As part of the self-evaluation process, candidates will be invited to submit such data as course syllabi and written assignments, manuals, course enrollment statistics, and statements of course goals and teaching Academic advising carries the teaching role past the classroom for the purpose of helping students make educational choices in the larger contexts of the department and the College. After the first year all tenure-track faculty members are expected to serve as academic advisors, regularly advising first-year students and others, except when given leave or special release.

Effective advisors articulate the value of a well-rounded liberal arts education and encourage students to explore the variety of courses offered at Cornell. In connection with the various degree programs, they offer perspective, suggest alternatives, provide feedback, and give final approval for student programs year by year. Cornell advisors should endeavor to provide continuity of contact with their advisees, whose contact with other faculty may be intensive but relatively short-term because of One-Course-At-A-Time. Finally, in connection with the caring atmosphere which Cornell aspires to foster, effective advisors give their advisees support, refer them to other resource persons, and encourage them to take responsibility for the conduct of their college careers.

Academic advising performance is evaluated on the basis of commentary about faculty members’ advising from students, faculty, staff, and department chairs. The RTP Subcommittee may also request comments from other persons, including the Registrar.

2. Intellectual and Professional Stature

Recognizing the close connection between effective teaching and intellectual and professional stature, the College encourages and expects scholarly or creative activity among its faculty as a component of effective teaching or as an end in itself. Since teaching is the clear emphasis at Cornell, faculty members are expected to devote appropriate time and energy to this aspect of professional activity. Extensive reading in the discipline, revision of courses when warranted, and development of new courses when appropriate to the program in a department are expected activities. In sum, faculty must attend to current developments in their field as they pertain to their pedagogical activities.

It is also important for faculty members regularly to engage in other scholarly or creative experience appropriate to their respective disciplines and interests. For example, in the physical and biological sciences, Cornell faculty members are expected to "do science," i.e., undertake the thinking and activity of scientific research, preferably in projects that involve students as co-researchers. Similarly, studio artists are expected to "make art"; artist-performers are expected to perform; and faculty in other fields are expected to engage variously in historical, theoretical, empirical, analytical, critical, textual, and/or pedagogical studies. Moreover, the institution recognizes that scholarly and creative activities inside and outside of Cornell College are valuable to the individual faculty member involved and to the College as a whole. The College therefore both desires and fosters such activities. Further, recognizing the range of disciplinary practices and needs, the College endeavors to support professional activities in equitable and appropriate ways in its allocation of faculty development funds. Except for a provision asking that each faculty member make a public presentation at least once during her/his first four years of service, the College has no specific expectations or requirements in this area.
At Cornell, the process of engagement is as important as the product. Cornell recognizes the value of the product and will make an effort to evaluate and appreciate it appropriately; but the College is equally interested in the vitality of relationship between the faculty member and the work being undertaken. Cornell invites and affirms traditional scholarship and creative activity. There is, however, no expectation that a faculty member will produce a given amount of scholarly or creative work over a prescribed period of time. In emphasizing both the process and the product, the College expects that faculty members will demonstrate thoughtful and energetic interest in professional and intellectual growth and will regularly plan, undertake, and report on meaningful activity. In this context faculty members should think about their interests and goals and discuss them with departmental colleagues, the Dean, and others at or beyond Cornell.

One of the considerations in assessing intellectual and personal stature is awareness of recent scholarship. Legislation passed by the Cornell faculty in 1987 states that in conducting interviews of candidates for positions on the faculty and before making recommendations regarding faculty personnel decisions, faculty members should determine whether candidates are appropriately abreast of recent scholarship in their respective disciplines. Many of the topics that should be discussed under this general heading are "discipline specific," and normally the best-suited persons to pursue the matter are members of the relevant department.

In light of our commitment to create an environment free from bias and to give to all members of the Cornell community the assurance that they are valued equally as human beings, we expect faculty members to be aware of scholarship relevant to such a commitment. Scholars should be able to overcome prejudice against groups defined by categories such as race, culture, religion, nationality, language, class, gender or sexual orientation. In most disciplines, subject matter and methodology have been influenced by efforts to enhance understanding and to reduce barriers by investigations of such groups and their interrelations. Faculty members and prospective faculty members being evaluated may appropriately be asked for evidence of such knowledge. For example, a candidate for a position in American history or sociology would be expected to be aware of the research and writing related to race in America that accompanied and followed the "Civil Rights Revolution" of the 1960s. Similarly, faculty members and aspiring faculty members should be expected to be familiar with at least the broad outlines of feminist scholarship in their disciplines.

("Feminist scholarship" may include the following types of scholarly works: [1] works whose primary focus is on women, treating women as a subject of inquiry of inherent interest, rather than as an adjunct to men; [2] works examining a question from a feminist perspective; [3] works which examine the impact of gender upon the epistemology, paradigms, methodologies, research topics and/or data of a given discipline; [4] works which uncover previously unknown or neglected contributions by women to any aspect of the human endeavor; and [5] works which examine pedagogical questions of teaching a given subject to men and women.)

In evaluating scholarly activity, the RTP Subcommittee weighs the impact of the work at hand on both the faculty member as an individual and on the presence of the faculty member in the setting of Cornell. Although disciplinary engagement is requisite for all faculty members, the College also affirms cross-disciplinary or broadly liberal arts oriented professional activity where such activity evidently contributes to curricular advancement or personal/professional growth.

In assessing the candidate's curricular activity, the Subcommittee will consider evidence of extensive reading in the field, revision of courses, development of new courses, and pedagogical experimentation and growth. Other appropriate activities to be considered may include project proposals and summaries of work-in-progress; contributions to symposia, colloquia, conferences, workshops, and clinics, and works online; publications, including textbooks; participation in performances, shows, and exhibits; and work in professional organizations. In the course of evaluating professional activity, the Subcommittee will consider testimony from the candidate, the department, other faculty colleagues, and, when appropriate, academic and artistic persons outside the College. Except for the completion of degree work in progress, activity in this category becomes more important in the stages after Reappointment, when the teaching enterprise has become well established at Cornell.

3. Commitment to the Liberal Arts

This criterion is at once the most pervasive and the least precise of those we consider in our reviews. In our public discourse about Cornell as a liberal arts college, we talk about a curriculum which embraces many disciplines; pedagogies which emphasize, in varying degrees, instruction and experience in critical thinking, communication, problem-solving, and computation; and the inherent intellectual/imaginative value of undergraduate study. We say that a liberal arts education prepares students to be disciplined, thoughtful, and adaptive to change. Insofar as this conceptualization can be distinguished from other versions of higher education, we ask that our faculty members actively advance it in their work.

Commitment to the liberal arts can and should be expressed in several ways. At Cornell, a liberal education not only means the completing of a certain curriculum but also fostering the broad understanding and critical thinking that are crucial to intellectual growth. Cornell faculty members are expected to affirm this education, in and out of the classroom, throughout their career at the College. In this connection, faculty are invited to consider the college’s mission and core values (Catalogue) and to address how the Educational Priorities and Outcomes relate to the faculty member’s teaching, scholarship, and other activities. By doing this, faculty ensure that Cornell students encounter the overall educational objectives of the College across the entire curriculum.

Cornell teachers and advisors should also convey an appreciation of the liberal arts aspects of their own and other disciplines. As a collegial body they should attend responsibly to the content, organization, and procedures related to the curriculum as a whole. In addition, all Cornell faculty members are expected to take an interest in the intellectual and creative life of the College as represented in the various public lectures, symposia, exhibitions, and performances scheduled from year to year. The College encourages both attendance and participation vis-a-vis these activities. Evidence of a faculty member’s commitment to the liberal arts may be found in both curricular and extra-curricular activities, and individual initiatives in this area will be valued and accorded appropriate recognition.

4. Service
The criterion of service is understood to mean professionally relevant contributions to the College, the community, and society at large. Cornell is a collegial institution, and all sectors contribute to its ongoing life. But the charter explicitly gives to the faculty substantial authority over "all matters connected with the educational, social, moral and religious work of the College." Faculty governance therefore is in many respects institutional governance, and faculty are expected to participate as a matter of responsible campus citizenship. Such participation is grounded in Cornell's faculty committee system, where most faculty serve regularly, but it extends also to participation in the ongoing and special activities of the department, periodic service on search committees, occasional service in ad hoc capacities, and cyclical service as department chair. Faculty members are also encouraged to serve as advisors to student organizations on campus. Evidence of appropriate service may include membership on committees and participation of record in other governance and collegial activities at Cornell.

Cornell faculty members are often called upon to serve also in the wider Mt. Vernon/Cedar Rapids/Iowa City community and beyond. Historically a number of faculty have been elected to school boards and city councils in the area, while others have given leadership in churches or in other dimensions of civic life at the local, state, or national level. Such service is not expected of all Cornell faculty, but it is consistent with the mission of the College and therefore is invited, appreciated, and counted as a positive contribution.

Procedures: Initial Appointment of Faculty

1. When a faculty position is open, the Dean shall notify the faculty of that fact, and the Committee on Administration, in consultation with the department involved, will evaluate the importance of that position to the educational goals of the College and will make one of three recommendations to the administration: (1) the position should not be filled; (2) the position should be designated as part-time and filled; (3) the position should be designated as full-time and filled. The committee sends its recommendation to the Dean of the College. The Dean then submits his or her own recommendation along with the committee’s recommendation to the President.

2. When the administration determines whether and how the vacancy is to be filled, the Dean shall notify the rest of the faculty of that decision. A search is conducted in accordance with the College’s Affirmative Action/Equal Opportunity Program.

The department shall consult with the Dean regarding the candidates to be invited to the campus for interviews. Such candidates shall be interviewed by a group of faculty members (search committee) representing various disciplines and academic points of view. All candidates for a given position shall be interviewed by substantially the same group. Search committee members are responsible for giving to the chair of the search committee their opinions of candidates whom they have interviewed. The department chair shall notify the Dean of the search committee’s preferences.

3. This procedure may be modified only by mutual consent of the Dean and the department following consultation with the Director of Human Resources and Affirmative Action Officer. Problems of appointments or appointment procedures may be referred to the Committee on Administration.
4. The Dean recommends the candidate to the President, and the President, if he or she approves, in turn recommends the candidate to the Executive Committee of the Board of Trustees for final approval.

5. Initial appointments to the rank of instructor or assistant professor will be made by contract normally for a period of one or two years. Normally reappointments in these ranks will be made by contract on a two-year basis.

6. Initial appointments to the rank of associate or full professor will be made by contract for a period of one or two years. Reappointment, if tenure has not yet been granted, may be for a one or two-year period.

Shared Appointments on the Tenure Track

Understanding the strong interest in flexibility among persons in higher education in the 1990’s, Cornell College offers the possibility of a shared tenure-track appointment, normally to be filled by two persons employed in the same department. Here are specific guidelines:

1. Each person shall teach a minimum of three courses in any given year, and a minimum of six courses over each two-year period. Compensation shall be proportional at the full-time rate. Persons sharing an appointment may negotiate for additional teaching at a part-time rate, depending on the needs of the department.

2. To ensure the involvement of both persons in the life of the department, each shall advise entering students as well as majors, in numbers approximating half of those assigned to full-time members of the faculty.

3. To ensure the involvement of both persons in the life of the College, each shall perform appropriate committee service, normally serving this capacity two out of four years, or three out of six years.

4. To ensure support for the professional activity of both persons, each shall be eligible for any available start-up monies, and each may apply annually for Cornell development funds or request matching funds for outside grant support.

5. Each person shall be evaluated independently along the tenure-track and shall be expected to meet Cornell standards of quality with respect to all stated criteria for awarding tenure. Normal consideration for tenure and promotion to associate professor will be in the eighth year of employment at Cornell, with a sabbatical leave to follow in the ninth year.

6. Each person shall have proportional eligibility for any Cornell fringe benefits currently in force. Full sabbatical leave and other leave policies will apply to the position as a whole, with leave release to be split between those sharing the position.

7. Should one person in this position leave the institution, the College will reconsider the shared nature of this particular position for the future using the normal mechanism for consideration of positions that involves the Committee on Administration.
Faculty Appointment Review Schedule

The normal review schedule is (1) reappointment, which takes place in the first semester of the candidate’s second year, (2) pre-tenure, which takes place in the candidate’s fourth year, (3) tenure, which takes place in the candidate’s sixth year, (4) promotion to professor, for which candidates may apply beginning in their seventh year of service as associate professor, and (5) post-promotion, which normally takes place on a regular cycle beginning no less than six and no more than ten years following promotion to professor. Accelerated review schedules are sometimes used for faculty members who come with previous teaching credit and/or experience. These schedules are agreed upon by the Dean, the department, and the candidate. Candidates who postpone or decline consideration for promotion to full professor shall continue to be reviewed on a six to ten year cycle using procedures for post-promotion reviews until they request consideration for promotion.

Tenure

After the expiration of a probationary period, faculty shall have permanent or continuous tenure, and their services shall be terminated only for adequate cause, except, under extraordinary circumstances, because of financial exigency.

Cornell College policy in regard to academic freedom and tenure follows in principle the 1940 Statement of Principles of the American Association of University Professors and the Associations of American Colleges. In the interpretation of the principle of tenure, the following shall constitute Cornell’s practice:

1. The precise terms and conditions of every appointment, including if necessary a statement about the completion of a terminal degree, shall be stated in writing and be in the possession of both institution and teacher before the appointment is consummated.

2. The maximum probationary periods for the various ranks shall be as follows:

   a. At the rank of instructor, seven years at Cornell College, after which period the instructor is to be promoted to the rank of assistant professor or be no longer retained in the service of the institution;

   b. At the rank of assistant professor and above, seven years at Cornell College (including years as instructor);

   c. It may be that the probationary period will be shorter, if when called to Cornell College, a teacher has had full-time service at other institutions of higher and/or other appropriate experience. Such agreement will be made in writing.

   d. Faculty in the first academic year of service are notified no later than March 1, if the appointment expires at the end of that year. Faculty in the second academic year of service are notified no later than December 15 of that second year, if the appointment expires at the end of that year. Faculty with two or more years of service at Cornell College shall be given at least twelve months notice before the expiration of an appointment.
(Normal practice at Cornell is for a beginning instructor or assistant professor to be given, if reappointed, a series of three two-year contracts, with a tenure decision to be made in the spring of the sixth year. If tenure is not awarded, then the seventh year is terminal.)

3. During the probationary period, a teacher shall have the academic freedom that all other members of the faculty have.

4. Termination for cause of continuous appointment; or the dismissal for cause of a teacher previous to the expiration of a term appointment, shall be considered according to the Regulations Governing Faculty Dismissals given below. In all cases where the facts are in dispute, the accused teachers shall be informed before the hearing in writing of the charges against them and shall have the opportunity to be heard in their own defense by all bodies that pass judgment upon their case. They shall be permitted to have with them an advisor of their own choosing who may act as counsel. There shall be a full stenographic record of the hearing available to the parties concerned. In the hearing of charges of incompetence, the testimony shall include that of teachers and other scholars, either from this or from other institutions. Faculty on continuous appointment who are dismissed for reasons not involving moral turpitude shall receive their salaries for at least a year from the date of notification of dismissal, whether or not they have continued in their duties at the institution. See Handbook section on “Termination of Appointment for Cause.”

Professional Development and Evaluation of Faculty

Cornell College, as a liberal arts undergraduate college, aspires above all to excellence in teaching. The College strives to appoint to and retain faculty members who are committed and effective teachers, scholars, and members of the academic and larger communities. In our corporate life as an institution we seek to provide an environment conducive to excellence in teaching and to the continuous professional development of the faculty. As part of this effort we establish a system for faculty evaluation.

The performance of faculty members is, by the very nature of the profession, evaluated on a continuing basis, formal and informal, by their colleagues and students, by their peers in their disciplines at other institutions, and by potential funding agencies both public and private. This continuing evaluation is healthy and valuable. In addition, formal methods of evaluation are necessary within the College for purposes of making decisions regarding reappointment, tenure, promotion, merit salary increases, sabbatical leaves, and faculty improvement grants. Faculty evaluation also assists faculty members in their continuing effort to improve their performance. Such evaluation should not be limited to non-tenured faculty members.

Procedures: Reappointment, Tenure and Promotion

A. Faculty Member
Early in the academic year the Dean publishes a list of all faculty reviews to be conducted by the Subcommittee on Reappointment, Tenure, and Promotion.

Preparatory to the review, the Dean shall invite the faculty member to discuss the review process and provide guidance in preparation for the review. The Office of Academic Affairs will assemble a pertinent file for consideration by the department and/or program and the RTP Subcommittee. The file will contain materials submitted by the faculty member including a self-commentary speaking explicitly to teaching and advising, intellectual and professional stature, service, and affirmation of the liberal arts. The self-commentary should address any issues raised as an outcome of earlier reviews. The faculty member’s submission should also include an up-to-date curriculum vita; representative course syllabi; other course materials (optional); relevant publications or presentation texts; and any other materials of relevance that the candidate may choose to submit.

In addition, the file will contain the departmental recommendation and faculty letters solicited by the candidate. The Dean shall also invite faculty, student and staff letters and may invite letters from designated alumnae/i for the file. Finally, student evaluations for courses taught by the candidate during the review period, as well as student evaluations solicited by the Dean’s Office in consultation with the candidate, and a summary of departmental grade point average comparisons will be placed in the file for review. In the case of pre-tenure and tenure reviews, materials from prior review(s) will be reviewed and considered.

A closing date for submissions from individuals outside the candidate’s department will be noted by the review schedule, which is published by the Dean’s Office.

B. Departments

The departmental recommendation is important because members of the department can best assess the extent and quality of the candidate’s performance on the basis of the four criteria described in “Expectations and Evaluation of Faculty Members at Cornell College” given elsewhere in the Faculty Handbook.

Department chairs shall follow the procedures described below in preparing the departmental recommendation.

Preparatory to the review, the Dean shall meet with the department chair to discuss the review process and provide guidance for the review.

The department chair shall meet with the candidate prior to the submission of the candidate’s materials to the Dean’s Office to discuss the review process.

After receiving the candidate’s review file from the Dean’s Office, the file will be housed in the department chair’s office. All tenure-track and only tenure-track members of the department (with the exception of the candidate) will have access to the review file.

For pre-tenure, tenure, and promotion to professor, the department chair or another designated member of the department shall:

a. arrange for a classroom visit(s) at a mutually convenient time and write a classroom visit report that may be integrated into the departmental recommendation or submitted as a separate document.
b. meet with students (majors and/or non-majors) individually or in groups for a discussion of the candidate’s specific strengths and weaknesses. Two members, whenever possible, of the department shall participate in group meetings. A summary of the discussion may be integrated into the departmental recommendation or submitted as a separate document.

c. meet with tenure-track members of the department to discuss the candidate’s file and formulate a departmental recommendation.

Each tenure-track member of the department, with the exception of the candidate, must sign an acknowledgement that s/he has read the official departmental recommendation. Signature does not imply agreement or disagreement with the document. The departmental recommendation will be placed in the candidate’s file a minimum of five working days prior to the submission of the file to the Dean’s Office. Tenure-track members of the department, with the exception of the candidate, may add letters in response to the departmental recommendation at any time prior to the submission of the file to the Dean’s Office. Chairs will inform department members when any additional material is placed in the file.

The review file will be considered closed after the chair submits it to the Dean’s Office. No further documents will be added to the file.

The department chair shall provide the written department recommendation to the candidate and discuss the recommendation with the candidate after the file is closed and prior to the Subcommittee review.

C. Department/Program Procedures for the Review of Faculty Members Holding Joint Appointments

The review file will be made available to each department/program. Each department/program will follow the protocol outlined in “Departments” earlier in this section of the Handbook.

If the faculty member holds a joint appointment in two departments, the department chairs shall exchange departmental recommendations after the review file is closed. Both department chairs shall serve as appointed members of the RTP Subcommittee for this review.

If the faculty member being reviewed holds a joint appointment in a department and a program, the program chair, in consultation with the Dean, shall appoint a committee of three tenure-track faculty members from within the program for the purpose of preparing a program recommendation. The department chair and program chair shall exchange recommendations after the review file is closed. All tenure-track and only tenure-track members of the candidate’s department (with the exception of the candidate) and the appointed program committee will have access to the candidate’s review file.

Each tenure-track member of the departments and/or the three appointed program committee members, with the exception of the candidate, must sign an acknowledgement that s/he has read the official recommendations. Signature does not imply agreement or disagreement with the documents. The official recommendation will be placed in the candidate’s file a minimum of five working days prior to the submission of the file to the Dean’s Office. Tenure-track members of the departments and/or program committee members, with the exception of the candidate, may add letters in response to the recommendations at any time prior to the submission of the file to the Dean’s Office. Chairs will inform department members and/or program committee members when any additional material is placed in the file.
The review will be considered closed after the chair submits it to the Dean’s Office. No further documents will be added to the file.

The department chairs and/or program chairs shall provide the written department or program recommendation to the candidate and discuss the recommendation with the candidate after the file is closed and prior to the Subcommittee review.

D. Procedures of the Subcommittee on Reappointment, Tenure, and Promotion

There shall be within the Committee on Administration a Faculty Subcommittee on Reappointment, Tenure and Promotion. This Subcommittee shall consist of four tenured members of the faculty, elected for two-year terms, two members to be elected each year. The Dean of the College shall act as ex officio chair of the Subcommittee. The Dean shall not vote during individual faculty reviews but may vote if necessary (i.e., as any other committee chair does) when the subcommittee is performing other functions.

For each review (reappointment, pre-tenure, tenure, promotion, or post-promotion), the Dean and three elected members shall serve as the review committee. Faculty mentors shall not serve on their mentee’s reappointment, pre-tenure, or tenure review committees; otherwise, which elected members serve on specific review committees shall be determined by a random process designed to distribute reviews as evenly as possible among elected members by irrespective of any other factors. An elected member of RTP shall not recuse himself or herself for any reason other than being a faculty mentor for a specific faculty member being reviewed. The personnel for specific review committees shall be determined at the beginning of each academic year and this information shall be transmitted to those faculty members being reviewed. Once determined, the composition of any specific review committee shall not be changed except in case of emergency. An individual review may be moved to a different time if necessary but the composition of any specific review committee shall not be changed except in case of emergency. Should an emergency arise, the composition of a specific review committee can be changed, but only with the consent of the faculty member being reviewed.

This specific review committee, called the Review Subcommittee (or Review Subcommittee with its added members where applicable; see below) will make recommendations in all cases of reappointment, pre-tenure, tenure, and promotion reviews.

E. Reappointment, Pre-tenure, and Tenure Reviews

When the Reappointment, Tenure, and Promotion Subcommittee is to conduct a review for reappointment, the review will be conducted by the Review Subcommittee consisting of three of the four elected members of the Subcommittee and the Dean. The chair of the department shall serve as a non-voting member of the Review Subcommittee. If the chair of the department is an elected member of the Review Subcommittee, the department will appoint another member.

When the Review Subcommittee is to conduct a pre-tenure or tenure review, the chair of the department concerned and a tenured faculty member from outside the candidate’s department and invited by the candidate being reviewed shall be added to the Review Subcommittee. If the chair of the department is an elected member of the Review Subcommittee, the department will appoint another member. The added faculty member’s role is not to serve as an advocate, but instead is to fairly and fully evaluate all information relevant to the review and make an independent judgment in the same manner as other members of the Review Subcommittee.

Because of the confidential nature of the mentor-mentee relationship, a candidate’s Faculty Mentor shall not serve on reappointment, pre-tenure, or tenure Review Subcommittees.

When the Subcommittee is to conduct a review for reappointment for a candidate holding a joint appointment in two departments, both department chairs shall serve as non-voting members of the Review Subcommittee. If either chair is an elected member of the Review Subcommittee, the department will appoint another member.

When the Subcommittee is to conduct a pre-tenure or tenure review for a candidate holding a joint appointment in two departments, both department chairs shall serve as appointed members of the Review Subcommittee for all reviews and a tenured faculty member from outside the candidate’s departments and invited by the candidate being reviewed will be added to the Review Subcommittee. If either chair is an elected member of the Review Subcommittee, the department will appoint another member. The added faculty member’s role is not to serve as an advocate, but instead is to fairly and fully evaluate all information relevant to the review and make an independent judgment in the same manner as other members of the Review Subcommittee. In the case of a tie vote, the votes of the elected RTP members will determine the outcome.

When the Subcommittee is to conduct a review for reappointment for a candidate holding a joint appointment in a department and a program, the department chair and program chair shall serve as non-voting members of the Review Subcommittee. If either chair is an elected member of the Review Subcommittee, the department or program will appoint another member.

When the Subcommittee is to conduct a pre-tenure or tenure review for a candidate holding a joint appointment in a department and a program, the department chair and program chair shall serve as appointed members of the Review Subcommittee for all reviews, and a tenured faculty member from outside the candidate’s department and program and invited by the candidate being reviewed shall be added to the Review Subcommittee. If either chair is an elected member of the Review Subcommittee, the department or program will appoint another member. The added faculty member’s role is not to serve as an advocate, but instead is to fairly and fully evaluate all information relevant to the review and make an independent judgment in the same manner as other members of the Review Subcommittee. In the case of a tie vote, the votes of the elected RTP members will determine the outcome.

The Review Subcommittee will meet with the candidate being reviewed if such a meeting is requested by the candidate. The Review Subcommittee may also request such a meeting. The Review Subcommittee may also bring in other individuals as appropriate.

Following each reappointment or pre-tenure review the Review Subcommittee members shall make one of the following recommendations by secret ballot: (1) reappointment (with or without suggestions or concerns), (2) reappointment with reservations (including stipulations), (3) conditional reappointment for one year (including stipulations), or (4) no reappointment but extension of employment for a terminal year, or (5) no reappointment and termination at the end of the current year (only for those faculty who have not yet completed two years of service).

Following each tenure review the Review Subcommittee members shall make one of the following recommendations by secret ballot: (1) reappointment and tenure (with or without suggestions or concerns), (2) denial of tenure with extension of employment for a terminal year, or (3) extension of probationary period for one year with tenure review in the following year.

The Dean shall tally the ballots and report the results to the Subcommittee. In all cases, to which there will be no exceptions, the vote of the individual faculty members of the Review Subcommittee will remain confidential.

The Dean shall meet with the candidate to convey the final recommendation and substance of the Review Subcommittee’s deliberations. A report of the Review Subcommittee’s deliberations will be recorded in a letter written by the Dean and transmitted to the candidate, the department chair, and the President. The letter will be approved by all members of the Review Subcommittee. The letter will become a part of the faculty member’s personnel file in the Office of the Dean. Should the individual be reappointed, the letter will be made available to the Review Subcommittee that will conduct the candidate’s next review.

If the candidate desires a meeting of appeal with the Review Subcommittee to hear and respond to the reasons for the Review Subcommittee’s recommendation, this request will be granted. If the candidate wishes to appeal the RTP Review Subcommittee’s decision, the candidate will follow the “Faculty Grievance Procedure” outlined in the Faculty Handbook.

The Dean shall transmit to the President of the College the recommendation of the Review Subcommittee along with his/her own recommendation. If the recommendation of the Dean differs from that of the Review Subcommittee, the President shall pursue the matter with both the Review Subcommittee and the Dean to make a determination of institutional outcome.

In the event the President believes that he or she should make a decision involving tenure, or the formal review of a reappointment which is contrary to the recommendation of the Review Subcommittee, the President shall meet with the Review Subcommittee before making his or her decision known to the candidate.

A positive recommendation, as approved and conveyed by the President, must be ratified at the spring meeting of the Board of Trustees to become official. Normally, a negative recommendation will be conveyed to both the President and the Trustees as an item for information only.

The candidate may request a conference with the President or the Dean to discuss the recommendation. At any point in these proceedings prior to the time the President makes the recommendation to the Board of Trustees, the individual has a right to withdraw from consideration for tenure or reappointment or to submit a written resignation to the President and the Board of Trustees.

A list will be published each year of those who have been granted reappointment and tenure after the Board of Trustees has officially acted upon these recommendations from the President.

In no case should the review process described above be used as a substitute for the procedures adopted for use in cases of dismissal for cause.

F. Promotion to the Rank of Professor

Since promotion to the rank of full professor is the College’s highest academic honor, it should signify an outstanding contribution, not merely satisfactory performance and years of service. The Reappointment, Tenure, and Promotion Subcommittee expects excellent performance in teaching and in at least one of the other three areas of evaluation described in “Expectations and Evaluation of Faculty Members at Cornell College” found elsewhere in the Faculty Handbook. This promotion implies fulfillment of the expectations expressed at the time of tenure and promotion to the senior faculty ranks, as well as the assumption of an appropriate share of the responsibilities related to departmental and campus governance. Given the emphasis the College places upon teaching, the flexibility among the other three areas recognizes that faculty members will differ in their strengths and interests; indeed, such diversity is desirable. Nonetheless, substantial contributions are expected in all of the areas of involvement in the institution.

Early in the academic year, the Dean shall inform department and program chairs of the eligible faculty members requesting promotion to the rank of professor. Normally, faculty members are eligible in the candidate’s seventh year of service as associate professor.

When the Subcommittee is to conduct a review for promotion to the rank of professor, the review will be conducted by the Review Subcommittee consisting of three of the four elected members of the Subcommittee and the Dean. The chair of the department shall serve as a non-voting member of the Review Subcommittee. If the chair of the department is an elected member of the Review Subcommittee, the department will appoint another member. In the case of joint appointments, the two departments or the department and program chairs shall conduct the review in accordance with “Department/Program Procedures for the Review of Faculty Members Holding Joint Appointments” found elsewhere in the Faculty Handbook and both chairs shall serve as non-voting members of the Review Subcommittee.

Preparatory to the review, the Dean shall invite the faculty member to discuss the review process and provide guidance in preparation for the review. The Office of Academic Affairs will assemble a pertinent file for consideration by the department and the RTP Review Subcommittee. The file will contain materials submitted by the faculty member including a self-commentary speaking explicitly to teaching and advising, intellectual and professional stature, service, and affirmation of the liberal arts. The self-commentary should address any issues raised as an outcome of earlier reviews. The faculty member’s submission should also include an up-to-date curriculum vita; representative course syllabi; other course materials (optional); relevant publications or presentation texts; and any other materials of relevance that the candidate may choose to submit.

In addition, the file will contain the departmental/program recommendations and faculty letters solicited by the candidate. The Dean shall also invite faculty, student and staff letters and may invite letters from designated alumnae/i for the file. Finally, student evaluations for courses taught by the candidate during the review period, as well as student evaluations solicited by the Dean’s Office in consultation with the candidate, and a summary of departmental grade point average comparisons will be placed in the file for review.

The department chairs/program chairs shall follow the departmental procedures described in “Departments” found elsewhere in the Faculty Handbook.

The Review Subcommittee will meet with the candidate being reviewed if such a meeting is requested by the candidate. The Review Subcommittee may also request such a meeting. The Review Subcommittee may also bring in other individuals as appropriate.
Following each promotion review the Review Subcommittee members shall make one of the following recommendations by secret ballot: (1) promote or (2) deny promotion. In the case of denial, the Review Subcommittee will recommend a timetable for reconsideration.

Should promotion be denied, the candidate’s file will remain active until reconsideration. At the time of reconsideration, it will be supplemented with commentary from the candidate discussing the factors relevant to the denial of promotion and with new materials covering the interval since the previous consideration. Should the candidate choose to withdraw from consideration for promotion, reviews will be conducted at intervals of no less than six nor more than ten years as described in “Procedures: Post-Promotion Review.”

The Dean shall meet with the candidate to convey the outcome of the Review Subcommittee’s deliberations. The final decision of the Review Subcommittee will be recorded in a letter written by the Dean and transmitted to the candidate, the department chair, and the President. The letter will be approved by all members of the Review Subcommittee. The letter will become a part of the faculty member’s personnel file in the Office of the Dean and will be made available to the Review Subcommittee that will conduct the candidate’s next review.

If the candidate desires a meeting of appeal with the Review Subcommittee to hear and respond to the reasons for the Review Subcommittee’s decision, the request will be granted.

The Dean shall transmit to the President of the College the recommendation of the Review Subcommittee along with his/her own recommendation. If the recommendation of the Dean differs from that of the Review Subcommittee, the President shall pursue the matter with both the Review Subcommittee and the Dean to make a determination of institutional outcome.

In the event the President believes that he or she should make a decision involving promotion which is contrary to the recommendation of the Review Subcommittee, the President shall meet with the Review Subcommittee before making his or her decision known to the candidate.

A positive recommendation, as approved and conveyed by the President, must be ratified at the spring meeting of the Board of Trustees to become official. Normally, a negative recommendation will be conveyed to both the President and the Trustees as an item for information only.

The candidate may request a conference with the President or the Dean to discuss the recommendation. At any point in these proceedings prior to the time the President makes the recommendation to the Board of Trustees, the individual has a right to withdraw from consideration for promotion.

A list will be published each year of those who have been granted promotion after the Board of Trustees has officially acted upon these recommendations from the President.

Procedures: Post-Promotion Reviews

When the Subcommittee is to conduct a post-promotion review, the review will be conducted by the Review Subcommittee consisting of three of the four elected members of the Subcommittee and the Dean. The chair of the department shall serve as a member of the Review Subcommittee. In the case of a joint appointment in two departments, both department chairs shall serve as appointed members of the Review Subcommittee. In the case of a joint appointment in a department and a program, the department chair and program chair shall serve as appointed members of the Review Subcommittee. No vote is taken.

The period between post-promotion reviews will be no less than six nor more than ten years.

Preparatory to the review, the Dean shall invite the faculty member to discuss the review process and provide guidance in preparation for the review. The Office of Academic Affairs will assemble a pertinent file for consideration by the department and the RTP Review Subcommittee. The file will contain materials submitted by the faculty member including a self-commentary speaking explicitly to teaching and advising, intellectual and professional stature, service, and affirmation of the liberal arts. The self-commentary should address any issues raised as an outcome of earlier reviews. The faculty member’s submission should also include an up-to-date curriculum vita; representative course syllabi; other course materials (optional); relevant publications or presentation texts; and any other materials of relevance that the candidate may choose to submit.

In addition, the file will contain faculty letters solicited by the candidate. The Dean shall also invite faculty, student and staff letters and may invite letters from designated alumnae/i for the file. Finally, student evaluations for courses taught by the candidate during the review period, as well as student evaluations solicited by the Dean’s Office in consultation with the candidate, and a summary of departmental grade point average comparisons will be placed in the file for review.

The department/program chair(s), having consulted the evaluation file and discussed the faculty member’s work with department or program colleagues, will (each) submit a written commentary, which is also added to the file. The department and/or program chair(s) shall provide the written department or program commentary to the candidate and discuss it with the candidate prior to the Subcommittee review.

A closing date for submissions from individuals outside the candidate’s department will be noted by the review schedule, which is published by the Dean’s Office.

The Dean shall meet with the candidate to convey the substance of the Review Subcommittee’s discussion. The Review Subcommittee’s findings will be recorded in a letter written by the Dean and transmitted to the candidate, the department chair, and the President. The letter will be approved by all members of the Review Subcommittee. The letter will become a part of the faculty member’s personnel file in the Office of the Dean.

Procedures: Termination of Appointments

Regulation 1: Termination of Appointment for Cause

A. Introductory Remarks

Any approach toward settling the difficulties which have beset dismissal proceedings on many American campuses must look beyond procedure into setting and cause. A dismissal proceeding is a symptom of failure; no amount of use of the removal process will help strengthen higher education as much as will the cultivation of conditions in which dismissals rarely if ever need to occur.
Just as the Board of Trustees is the legal and fiscal corporation of the College, the faculty is the academic entity. Historically, the academic corporation is the older. Faculties were formed in the Middle Ages, with managerial affairs either self-arranged or handled in course by the parent church. Modern college faculties, on the other hand, are part of a complex and extensive structure requiring legal incorporation, with stewards and managers specifically appointed to discharge certain functions.

Nonetheless, the faculty of a modern college constitutes an entity as real as that of the faculties of medieval times in terms of collective purpose and function. A necessary precondition of a strong faculty is that it have first-hand concern with its own membership. This is properly reflected both in appointments to and in separations from the faculty body.

A well-organized institution will reflect sympathetic understanding by trustees and teachers alike of their respective and complementary roles. These should be spelled out carefully in writing and made available to all. Trustees and faculty should understand and agree on their several functions in determining who shall join and who shall remain on the faculty. One of the prime duties of the administrator is to help preserve understanding of those functions. It seems clear on the American college scene that a close positive relationship exists between the excellence of colleges, the strength of their faculties, and the extent of faculty responsibility in determining faculty membership. Such a condition is in no wise inconsistent with full faculty awareness of institutional factors with which governing boards must be primarily concerned.

In the effective college, a dismissal proceeding involving a faculty member on tenure, or one occurring during the term of an appointment, will be a rare exception, caused by individual human weakness and not by an unhealthful setting. When it does come, however, the college should be prepared for it, so that both institutional integrity and individual human rights may be preserved during the process of resolving the trouble. The faculty must be willing to recommend the dismissal of a colleague when necessary. By the same token, presidents and governing boards must be willing to give full weight to a faculty judgment favorable to a colleague.

B. Definitions

1. The following procedures shall be used when reason arises to question the fitness of a faculty member and dismissal is sought of a faculty member on continuous tenure, or of a faculty member on probationary or special appointment before the expiration of the term of appointment.

2. Adequate cause for dismissal shall be related, directly and substantially, to the fitness of the faculty member in his or her professional capacity as a teacher or researcher. Adequate cause may be academic incompetence, neglect of duty, a serious violation of the faculty member's responsibilities as defined in the College's "Statement on Professional Ethics," or admission or conviction of a serious violation of the criminal code.* The burden of proof that adequate cause exists

* "Admission or conviction of a serious violation of the criminal code" is not itself rests with the College and shall be satisfied only by clear and convincing evidence in the record considered as a whole.\textsuperscript{82}

Termination, or the threat of it, shall not be used to restrict faculty members in their exercise of academic freedom or their rights.

C. Pre-Hearing Procedures

1. A dismissal for cause under the circumstances defined in Section B shall be preceded by (a) discussions between the faculty member and appropriate administrative officers looking toward a mutual settlement; (b) informal inquiry by the Reappointment, Tenure, and Promotion Subcommittee which may, failing to effect an adjustment, determine whether in its opinion dismissal proceedings should be undertaken, without its opinion being binding upon the President; (c) a statement of charges, framed with reasonable particularity by the President or the President's delegate.\textsuperscript{83}

2. In conducting its informal inquiry the Reappointment, Tenure, and Promotion Subcommittee shall conduct its meetings in private and shall keep its deliberations confidential. It may hear or receive evidence bearing on the charges against the faculty member from the faculty member who is charged, from the Administration, and from third parties, but the Subcommittee shall keep in mind that its function is to mediate and not to attempt the kind of extensive formal investigation or hearing which would duplicate the work of the formal Hearing Committee which might later hear the case. If the Subcommittee's inquiry fails to effect an adjustment, the Subcommittee shall report that fact to the parties concerned. The Subcommittee may join the President in preparing a statement of charges, or it may recommend to the President that the charges be dropped. Since the Subcommittee does not have the responsibility of conducting an extensive investigation, a decision neither to join in a statement of charges nor to recommend dropping the charges shall not be regarded as a finding for either party.

3. Service of notice of hearing with specific charges in writing shall be made at least twenty days prior to the hearing. The faculty member may waive a hearing or may respond to the charges in writing at any time before the hearing. If the faculty member waives a hearing, but denies the charges against him or her or asserts that the charges do not support a finding of adequate cause, the Hearing Committee shall evaluate all evidence and rest its recommendation upon the evidence in the record.\textsuperscript{84}

D. Suspension

Pending a final decision by the Hearing Committee, the faculty member will be suspended, or assigned to other duties in lieu of suspension, only if immediate harm to himself/herself or others is threatened by his or her continuance. Before suspending a faculty member, pending ultimate determination of his or her status necessarily cause for dismissal.
through the hearing procedures, the President shall consult with the Committee on Administration concerning the propriety, the length, and the other conditions of the suspension. A suspension which is intended to be final is a dismissal, and shall be treated as such. Salary shall continue during the period of suspension.

E. Hearing Procedures

1. The faculty member who is charged shall have the right to be heard by a Hearing Committee under the procedures described below before the termination can be effective.

2. The Chair of the Committee on Administration will present a list of all full-time teaching members of the faculty with continuous tenure to the President and to the faculty member involved, each of whom, acting separately, may strike from the list up to one-third of the names on the list. From the names not so struck, the Chair, in the presence of the other members of the Committee on Administration, will draw by lot the names of five faculty members who will constitute the Hearing Committee. The members of the Hearing Committee will elect one of themselves as chair. (Members of the faculty chosen in this way for service on the Hearing Committee should recognize their obligation to serve. If, however, a member drawn for service disqualifies him or herself on grounds of bias, interest, or health, a replacement shall be chosen by lot from the above-mentioned list.)

3. The Hearing Committee may, with the consent of the parties concerned, hold joint pre-hearing meetings with the parties in order to (a) simplify the issues, (b) effect stipulations of fact, (c) provide for the exchange of documentary or other information, and (d) achieve such other appropriate pre-hearing objectives as will make the hearings fair, effective, and expeditious.

4. The Hearing Committee, in consultation with the President and the faculty member, shall exercise its judgment as to whether the hearing should be public or private, but the faculty member may require the hearing to be private.

5. During the proceedings the faculty member shall be permitted to have academic advisors and a lawyer of his or her own choice. The College also may have advisors and be represented by a lawyer of its choice.

6. At the request of either party or the Hearing Committee, representatives of the American Association of University Professors or other responsible educational associations shall be permitted to attend the proceedings as observers.

7. A verbatim record of the hearing or hearings shall be taken and a typewritten copy shall be made available to the faculty member without cost to him or her at his or her request.

8. The Hearing Committee shall grant adjournments to enable either party to investigate evidence as to which a valid claim of surprise is made.

9. The faculty member shall be afforded an opportunity to obtain necessary witnesses and documentary or other evidence, and the administration of the College shall, insofar as it is possible for it to do so, secure the cooperation of such witnesses and make available necessary documents and other evidence within its control. The College shall attempt to secure the consent of persons who have submitted relevant confidential material to the college to the use of such matter at the hearing; if the consent is refused, the College shall not be required to submit the material into evidence.

10. The Chair of the Hearing Committee shall control the order of proof and all members of the committee may participate in questioning witnesses and otherwise securing the presentation of evidence important to the case. The Committee shall, by majority vote, decide all questions of procedure and scheduling when decisions of the Chair are protested by the President or the faculty member.

11. The faculty member and the administration shall have the right to confront and cross-examine all witnesses. Where the witnesses cannot or will not appear, but the Committee determines that the interests of justice require admission of their statements, the Committee shall identify the witnesses, disclose their statements, and if possible provide for written questions.

12. In the hearing of charges of incompetence, the testimony shall include that of qualified faculty members from this or other institutions of higher education.

13. The Hearing Committee shall not be bound by strict rules of legal evidence, and may admit any evidence which is of probative value in resolving the issues of the case. Every possible effort shall be made to obtain the most reliable evidence available.

14. Before the close of the hearing the President or his representative and the faculty member or his counsel shall be afforded an opportunity to present either or both written briefs and oral argument, and either or both briefs and oral argument may be requested by the Hearing Committee.

15. The findings of fact and the decision shall be based solely on the evidence presented at the hearing. The Committee may proceed to decision promptly without having the record of the hearing transcribed where it believes a just decision can be reached by this means, or it may await the availability of a transcript. The Committee shall make explicit findings with respect to each of the grounds for dismissal presented, and it may also prepare a statement of reasons for the findings. The vote for and against each finding, but not the name of those voting, shall be made part of the record.

16. The President and the faculty member shall be notified of the decision in writing and shall be given a copy of the record of the hearing.

17. Except for such simple announcements as may be required, covering the time of the hearing and similar matters, public statements and publicity about the case by either the faculty member or the administrative officers shall be avoided so far as possible until the proceedings have been completed, including considerations by the Board of Trustees of Cornell College.
18. The Hearing Committee may adopt additional procedures not inconsistent with those of these regulations.\textsuperscript{103}

F. Post-Hearing Procedures

1. If the Hearing Committee concludes that adequate cause for dismissal has not been established by the evidence in the record, it will so report to the President. If the President rejects the report, the President will state his/her reasons for doing so, in writing, to the Hearing Committee and to the faculty member, and provide an opportunity for response before transmitting the case to the Board of Trustees. If the Hearing Committee concludes that adequate cause for dismissal has been established but an academic penalty less than dismissal would be more appropriate, it will so recommend, with supporting reasons.\textsuperscript{104}

2. If dismissal or other penalty is recommended, the President shall, on request of the faculty member, transmit to the Board of Trustees the record of the case. The Board's review, which may be by appropriate Board committee, shall be based on the record of the committee hearing, and it shall provide opportunity for argument, (oral or written or both, at its discretion) by the principals at the hearing or by their representatives.\textsuperscript{105} Either the decision of the Hearing Committee shall be sustained, or the proceeding shall be returned to the Hearing Committee with specific objections. The Hearing Committee shall then reconsider, taking into account the stated objections and receiving new evidence if necessary. If the Board returns the case to the Hearing Committee for reconsideration, the results of such reconsideration shall be studied by the Board before it makes a final decision.\textsuperscript{106}

3. If the appointment is terminated, the faculty member may receive salary beyond the effective date of the termination based on the recommendations of the Hearing Committee, subject to the approval of the President. Such decisions shall take into account the length and quality of service of the faculty member and other relevant factors.\textsuperscript{107} Faculty members on continuous appointment who are dismissed for cause not involving moral turpitude shall receive their salaries for at least a year from the date of notification of dismissal, whether or not they are continued in their duties at the College.\textsuperscript{108}

Regulation 2: Termination of Appointment for Reason of Financial Exigency\textsuperscript{109}

A. Termination of an appointment with continuous tenure, or of a probationary or special appointment before the end of the specified term, may occur under extraordinary circumstances because of a demonstrably bona fide financial exigency.

B. The Administration should inform the Committee on Administration as early and specifically as possible of significant impending financial difficulties that would clearly affect the quality of the academic program. The Committee on Administration shall participate in the decisions that a condition of financial exigency exists or is imminent and that all feasible alternatives to termination have been exhausted. The Committee shall be given access to all information that it requires to perform these tasks effectively. If the Committee on Administration and the Administration agree that a state of financial exigency exists, the procedures in paragraphs C-H will be followed.

C. Judgments determining where within the overall academic program termination of appointments may occur involve considerations of educational policy including affirmative action, as well as of faculty status, and shall, therefore, be the primary responsibility of the Committee on Administration of the Faculty, including the Dean of the College, working cooperatively with the Administration. The Committee shall also establish criteria for identifying the individuals whose appointments are to be terminated. These criteria shall include consideration of areas of teaching capability and length of service. Based on the criteria that have been established, the Administration may then, after consultation with the Committee on Administration (excluding members of the Subcommittee on Reappointment, Tenure and Promotion), propose specific individual members of the faculty whose appointments are to be terminated.

D. An individual holding an appointment with continuous tenure or a probationary or special appointment before the end of the specified term, whose appointment is proposed for termination, shall receive notice of this intention from the Administration. The faculty member shall then have the right to a full hearing before the faculty members of the Subcommittee on Reappointment, Tenure, and Promotion, serving as a Hearing Committee. The hearing need not conform in all respects with a proceeding concerning dismissal for cause, but the essentials of an on-the-record adjudicative hearing shall be observed. The issues in this hearing may include:

i. The existence and extent of the condition of financial exigency. The burden will rest on the Administration to prove the existence and extent of the condition. The findings of the Committee on Administration on the issues may be introduced.

ii. The validity of the educational judgments and the criteria for identification for termination. The recommendations of the Committee on Administration on these matters shall be considered presumptively valid.

iii. The question of whether the criteria are being properly applied in the individual case.

If, upon the basis of these hearings, the Hearing Committee concludes that one or more terminations have not been justified, the Committee shall report its reasons in writing to the President for each such case. In the event that a disagreement exists, the President should state the reasons in writing to the Committee and to the individual and should consider any rejoinders before sending a recommendation and summary of the case to the Executive Committee on the Board of Trustees.

E. If the institution, because of financial exigency, terminates appointments, it should not at the same time make new appointments, except in extraordinary circumstances where a serious distortion of the academic program would otherwise result. The appointment of a faculty member with tenure should not be terminated in favor of retaining a faculty member without tenure, except in extraordinary circumstances where a serious distortion of the academic program would otherwise result.
F. Before terminating an appointment because of financial exigency, the College, with faculty participation, shall make every effort to place the faculty member concerned in another suitable position within the institution.

G. In all cases of termination of appointment because of financial exigency, the faculty member concerned shall be given notice or severance salary not less than as prescribed in the rules for dismissals for cause.

H. In all cases of termination of appointment because of financial exigency, the place of the faculty member concerned should not be filled by a replacement within a period of three years, unless the released faculty member has been offered reinstatement and a reasonable time in which to accept or decline it.

Regulation 3: Resignation

A. Faculty members with continuous tenure who desire to terminate their appointments will give notice within 30 days after receiving notice of the terms of their appointment for the next year, or by May 15, whichever is later, although a waiver of this requirement may be properly requested of the college in case of hardship or a situation where a faculty member would otherwise be denied substantial professional advancement.

B. While faculty members on probationary or temporary appointments may not properly resign before the expiration of the agreed term of their appointments, a waiver of this requirement may be properly requested of the college in case of hardship or a situation where a faculty member would otherwise be denied substantial professional advancement.

Regulation 4: Retirement

Cornell College conforms with federal age discrimination laws which prohibit mandatory retirement based on age.

1. Cornell College is committed to the concept that the principal criteria for continuous appointment in the faculty are effectiveness of performance and continuation of the position held. Such performance will be determined by a process of regular and systematic evaluation. The basic principle governing the evaluation program is that termination of tenured faculty appointments is to be based on current policies of the Board of Trustees governing termination of tenured persons, i.e., such termination is to be based either on the free choice of the faculty member or on a negative performance evaluation by the college or on the justifiable elimination of the position.

2. Cornell College is committed to policies of career development and early retirement incentives for members of the faculty and administration. Programs should include but not be limited by the following:

   A. Faculty study grants for improvement of teaching and scholarship and/or for undertaking the preliminary self-evaluation and skills necessary to begin new careers.
B. Effective incentives for early retirement such as maintenance of faculty rank and status, office facilities, part-time teaching responsibilities, non-teaching services to the college, or combinations thereof.

Regulation 5: Cornell College Severance Program

The Cornell College Severance Program was amended effective November 26, 2012. Details and plan documents are available from the Office of Human Resources.

Emeritus Faculty

Emeritus status may be granted, by action of the Board of Trustees, to those who have decided to retire from full-time teaching. Fifteen years of service is normally required for Emeritus status. No matter what their rank before retirement, the retiring faculty members will be given either the title of “Professor Emerita” or “Professor Emeritus,” and will be made honorary associate members of Cornell’s Alumni Association, if they are not so already. If they are alumni of the College, then they are given the Alumni Award of Merit.

Emeritus faculty may be invited to continue to teach on a part-time basis, in which case they have the privileges of part-time faculty as well as those privileges listed in the next paragraph.

If they no longer teach, they still receive some College mailings, are invited to certain all-College functions, still receive faculty library privileges, plus the benefits as described in Section VII “Additional Benefits” (admission to college events, bookstore discounts, tuition allowance for dependents, use of the Field House and Commons). They may also attend and speak at faculty meetings, but they no longer vote. They may march in academic processions. They may request to have office space on campus. Office space will be assigned on a space-available basis, with preference given to those who are teaching full-time or part-time. Permission for office space will be granted for one year at a time. (For retirement before age 65 see Regulation 4 - Retirement, #2.

Procedures: Part-Time Staffing

The faculty, in consultation with the Dean of the College, have divided part-time appointments into five categories:

Category 1. Staff to teach additional sections of regular course offerings.

Category 2. Staff to teach established part-time positions e.g., music, ESL.

Category 3. Staff to replace faculty on sabbatical, release time or other leave.

Category 4. Staff to teach courses under development, or release regular faculty to teach such courses.

Category 5. Staff to teach one-time course offerings that enrich the college curriculum.

Each year the Dean will provide the Subcommittee on Academic Programs with a list of part-time faculty so that the subcommittee can keep track of such appointments.
Proposals for courses to be taught under Category 4 shall be submitted to the Subcommittee on Academic Programs as are regular new courses.

Since excessive delay might cause the college to miss opportunities leading to appointments in Category 5, the Dean would be free to initiate plans for staffing, after consultation with the relevant departments.

Proposals for courses to be taught under Category 5 shall be submitted to the Subcommittee on Academic programs as are regular new courses.

The Subcommittee on Academic Programs will report to the full Committee on Academic Affairs concerning these matters.

Guidelines: Part-time Appointments

1. General Principles

   A. Part-time appointments may be made to fill temporary needs (sabbatical replacement, enrollment overload, emergency leave of absence, etc.) or to enrich the curriculum in an area where, for whatever reason, a full-time appointment cannot be made. The college should seek as much as possible to maintain full-time positions for all programs in order to insure continuity and quality of instruction. In making part-time appointments, the college should, as in the case of full-time appointments, seek the most highly qualified persons available.

   B. Wherever possible, the college and the departments should develop long-range plans to clarify the use of both temporary and permanent part-time staff in terms of educational goals and needs. Such plans should establish appropriate limits on the number of part-time teachers in relation to full-time staff.

   C. Part-time faculty members are entitled to adequate office space, clerical support, access to college facilities (such as library and computer resources), access to campus mailbox and telephone, and necessary supplies. The college cannot, however, guarantee individual offices and telephones to all part-time staff members.

   D. The college and departments using part-time staff should ensure that these teachers receive adequate introduction to their courses, the overall curriculum, and departmental expectations regarding their duties.

2. Categories of Part-time Staff: Definitions

   A. Temporary Part-time: Persons appointed with less than a full-time teaching load and with the expectation that the appointment will be for no more than two years.

   B. Regular Part-time: Persons who are teaching in positions that are expected to be continued on a part-time basis. Usually this will be in courses added for “enrichment” purposes.
C. Emeritus Part-time: Former full-faculty members at Cornell College who have retired from full-time teaching and then teach on a part-time basis under terms of a mutually agreeable contract between the individual and the college.

D. Skills Instructors: Persons who do not teach courses, but work with individuals or groups in activities such as music or athletics.

3. Compensation of Part-time Faculty

A. The base salary per course for part-time faculty members will be approximately one-tenth that of a beginning assistant professor. This sum may be increased on the basis of educational qualifications, experience in teaching, or other considerations.

B. Regular part-time staff should receive salary increments, assuming satisfactory performance, based on years of teaching at Cornell.

C. Emeritus part-time faculty members will be paid at the rate specified for temporary part-time staff or at another mutually agreeable rate.

D. Skills instructors shall be paid at a rate that takes into account such factors as the prevailing rate in the area, the number of years the instructor has worked at Cornell, experience, and expertise.

E. Faculty who work four (4) or more blocks per calendar year after one year of service are considered part-time regular employees and will be eligible for health, life, long-term disability, and retirement benefits.

4. Support and Evaluation of Temporary and Regular Part-Time Faculty

A. The college shall ensure proper orientation for part-time faculty members prior to their appearance in the classroom through formal contact by the offices of the dean of the college and the registrar, informal interchange in the department, and resource documents including the part-time Faculty Handbook and “Teaching at Cornell.”

B. To ensure ongoing support and attention, a full-time member of the department shall serve as departmental mentor to the part-time faculty member, and in a new part-time faculty member’s first teaching term a full-time department member shall visit the classroom and provide appropriate feedback and follow-up.

C. To aid in evaluation of teaching performance, part-time faculty members in their first and second years shall administer the uniform student evaluation forms on an official basis in at least the first two courses they teach. If they teach as many as two courses in the first semester and one or more courses in the second semester, they shall also submit a set of forms for at least one second semester course. If they have taught at Cornell for more than two years, they shall submit forms officially for one course, if they teach only one; or for two courses if they teach two or more.
D. As a matter of individual record, part-time faculty members in their first and second years shall submit a brief year-end commentary on their experience at Cornell, remarking on student feedback, evaluating their own performance, and offering any suggestions they might have for improving part-time faculty support. This commentary shall be submitted to the department, with a copy to the Dean of the College.

E. As a matter of institutional record, departments shall submit to the Dean of the College a brief year-end commentary regarding the performance of part-time faculty members in their first and second years. Departments will also share this commentary or its substance with the part-time faculty member being evaluated. For part-time faculty members who continue to teach at least one course at Cornell after two years, steps D and E shall be carried out at two-year intervals, i.e., in the fourth year, sixth year, etc.

Procedures: Appointment of Administrative Officers with Faculty Status

When an appointment is to be made of an administrative officer with faculty status, the faculty shall be so informed. The President and the Chair of the Committee on Committees will select a faculty advisory committee representing various disciplines, especially those most closely associated with the administrative position under consideration. Committee membership will be announced to the faculty.

Candidates for the position shall be interviewed by the advisory committee. The members of the advisory committee should, collectively or individually, give to the President their recommendations for the appointment of a candidate and their opinions of the qualifications of the candidate.

The President will then recommend a candidate to the Board of Trustees.

Procedures for appointing the Dean of the College and the President differ, and are given in the following sections.

Currently, the following administrative officers hold faculty status: President of the College; Dean of the College; Vice President of the College for Business Affairs and Treasurer; Vice President for Enrollment and Dean of Admissions; Vice President for Student Affairs; Vice President for Institutional Advancement; Registrar; Chaplain of the College; College Librarian; other professional library staff.

Procedures: Appointment of a Dean of the College

When it becomes necessary to appoint a new Dean of the College, a faculty committee of five (augmented by the President of the Student Senate, or designate, and two other students selected in the manner determined by the student government) shall be selected as follows:

1. The nomination for this committee shall be conducted online, using a secure balloting system. The Committee on Committees shall send to each voting member of the faculty a list of eligible members. Eligibility shall be one year of full-time service on the faculty.
2. Each voting member shall nominate up to three members for the committee.

3. The Committee on Committees shall contact those persons who receive the highest number of votes and inform them of their nomination. If any wish their names withdrawn, the Committee on Committees shall contact that person having the next highest number of votes and inform that person of the nomination. This procedure shall continue until a list of nominees has been formed consisting of ten candidates, except that in a case of a tie for the tenth position, all those so tied will be included. At the time of the election, the Committee on Committees shall inform the faculty of the list of nominees and of those persons who asked that their names be withdrawn from consideration. A period of at least three business days (Monday-Friday) will elapse between the announcement of an election, or a call for nominations, and the deadline for voting.

4. From this list of nominees election shall proceed by the usual method of conducting online elections until five nominees shall have received a majority of those voting. On each ballot faculty members will vote for as many candidates as are necessary to complete the committee. After any ballot on which no candidate receives a majority of the votes, the candidate with the lowest number of votes shall be dropped, unless there is a tie for the lowest number of votes, in which case no candidate shall be dropped.

5. If circumstances warrant, elections and/or nominations may be carried out at faculty meetings using paper ballots.

6. The committee shall elect its own chair. The Chair of the Committee on Committees, or, if the Chair is already a member of the selection committee, a member of the Committee on Committees designated by its Chair, shall convene the selection committee and conduct the election.

7. If the committee is in need of a replacement member, the procedure described in sections 1-5 (above) will be followed, with this modification: instead of consisting of ten candidates, the list of nominees will consist of two candidates, except that in a case of a tie for the second position, all those so tied will be included. If there are multiple vacancies, this procedure will be repeated until all vacancies have been filled.

8. Both the President and the committee may make and shall receive nominations for the position of Dean of the College. Dossiers on candidates shall be available to both. By mutual agreement of the President and committee, the President shall invite candidates for interviews. On such occasions opportunity shall be made for candidates to meet other members of the faculty.

9. The President shall recommend to the Board of Trustees for appointment a candidate mutually agreed upon by the President and the committee.

Procedures: Appointment of a President of the College

When it becomes necessary to appoint a new President of the College, a faculty committee of five (augmented by the President of Student Senate, or designate, and two other students selected in the manner determined by the student government) shall be selected as follows to assist the Board of Trustees:

1. Nominations for the five faculty members of the search committee will be conducted online, using a secure balloting system. The Committee on Committees will send to each voting member of the faculty a list of eligible faculty members. Eligibility shall be one year of full-time service on the faculty.

2. Each voting member shall nominate up to three members for the committee.

3. The Committee on Committees shall contact those persons who receive the highest number of votes and inform them of their nomination. If any wish their names withdrawn, the Committee on Committees shall contact that person having the next highest number of votes and inform that person of the nomination. This procedure shall continue until a list of nominees has been formed consisting of ten candidates, except that in a case of a tie for the tenth position, all those so tied will be included. At the time of the election the Committee on Committees shall inform the faculty of the list of nominees and of those persons who asked that their names be withdrawn from consideration. A period of at least 3 business days (Monday-Friday) will elapse between the announcement of an election, or a call for nominations, and the deadline for voting.

4. From this list of nominees election shall proceed by the usual method of conducting online elections until five nominees shall have received a majority of those voting. On each ballot faculty members will vote for as many candidates as are necessary to complete the committee. After any ballot on which no candidate receives a majority of the votes, the candidate with the lowest number of votes shall be dropped, unless there is a tie for the lowest number of votes, in which case no candidate shall be dropped.

5. If circumstances warrant, elections and/or nominations may be carried out at faculty meetings using paper ballots.

6. The Committee shall elect its own Chair. The Chair of the Committee on Committees, or, if the Chair is a member of the selection committee, a member of the Committee on Committees designated by its Chair, shall convene the selection committee and conduct the election.

7. If the committee is in need of a replacement member, the procedure described in sections 1-5 (above) will be followed, with this modification: instead of consisting of ten candidates, the list of nominees will consist of two candidates, except that in a case of a tie for the second position, all those so tied will be included. If there are multiple vacancies, this procedure will be repeated until all vacancies have been filled.

8. Both student and faculty representatives shall share in making and receiving nominations, in reviewing applications and in evaluating information about the nominees and candidates for the position.

9. At the appropriate time, the Board of Trustees will be advised of the recommendation of the committee; student members may issue a separate recommendation if they wish to do so.
V. ACADEMIC REGULATIONS

Absence from Campus (Faculty)\textsuperscript{119}

During extended periods of absence from campus, whether during the academic year or during the summer, faculty members should inform the Office of the Dean of the College as to where they may be reached in cases of emergency or because of urgent College business.

Absence from Class (Faculty)\textsuperscript{120}

In the event a faculty member cannot meet classes because of illness or emergency, the Dean of the College or the Department Chair is to be notified.

The Dean of the College grants permission for absences necessary for professional reasons and approves temporary arrangements made to cover work during this period.

Absence from Class (Students)\textsuperscript{121}

Policies on class attendance are the responsibility of individual professors. Faculty are encouraged, however, to accommodate students who participate in a college-sponsored trip, encounter an emergency situation (student illness or family death), or participate in religious observances. (See also College-Sponsored Trips and Grade of Withdrawal)

The Health Center or other health professionals will issue verifications of absence for sufficient medical reasons. Students who know that they will be absent should notify their instructors in advance. Those who are unable to do so because of illness or personal or family crisis should notify their instructors as soon as possible. Instructors will decide on the basis of their explanations whether or not to accommodate them and in what way.

Students who participate in College-sponsored trips or will be absent due to religious observances are expected to secure the permission of their course instructors in advance of their absence and to arrange with their instructors to make up the work they will miss. Students who fail to make arrangements with their instructors in advance are subject to whatever penalties the instructors would normally impose for unexcused absences. In case of doubt as to a student’s participation in the trip, the instructor may consult the college sponsor.

Advising\textsuperscript{122}

Academic advising of students at Cornell proceeds at two levels:

1. Incoming students are assigned an academic advisor by the Office of Institutional Research, under the supervision of the Dean of the College. Advisors shall be selected from full-time teaching faculty, librarians with faculty rank, the Director of Counseling Services, and the Director of Academic Advising. Where possible, assignments are made on the basis of the student's expressed preference for a field of study. Advisors of first-year students are expected to stay in reasonably close contact with their group. Some money is available to underwrite the cost of group activities. First-year students remain with their advisors, as long as the arrangement is agreeable to both partners, until the student declares a degree program and a major on or before February first of the sophomore year. First-year students may declare a major as early as March of their first year.

2. A student who selects a major field will choose a faculty advisor from within the major field. A student who elects to complete a B.S.S. degree without a major shall choose an advisor from the full-time teaching faculty. Double or triple majors must designate a principal advisor but should consult with other advisors as needed or as required by the individual advisors.

Advising is considered a normal part of a faculty member's teaching responsibility, and faculty are expected to accept advisees in the major field. If, however, the relationship between an advisor and an advisee is unsatisfactory, either may terminate the arrangement. Any change of advisors or declaration of major must be recorded in the Office of the Registrar. Registration for any course and all changes in registration made by any student must have the advisor's approval and signature, and be recorded in the Registrar's Office.

Faculty are often in the situation of giving advice to students, whether or not they have an official relationship with the student. This friendly and useful association is a Cornell tradition.

All-College Policies

Cornell College has a strong tradition of democratic and open governance. In that spirit and in the interests of communication among the various constituencies of the college, the procedures described below are established for faculty involvement in the formulation and approval of all-college policies. An all-college policy is any rule regulating behavior with respect to the college and intended to be applicable to faculty, staff, and students alike or to be applicable to all employees of the college. The procedures described below are intended to foster communication among those affected by an all-college policy and are intended to augment rather than to circumvent the long-established procedures for faculty legislation. These guidelines largely describe the procedures to be followed once a policy has been drafted. In formulating a draft policy, the President is encouraged to consult with groups representing the interests of faculty, staff, and students.

1. When an All-College Policy is considered by the President

When a recommendation for an all-college policy has been initiated by a member of the administration and has the President's approval, the President shall consult with the faculty's Committee on Committees. This committee shall determine whether the proposed policy requires faculty legislation and, if so, to which Committee of the Faculty it shall be referred. In making its decision, the Committee on Committees shall seek guidance from the Bylaws of the College, the Faculty Handbook, and the Joint Statement on the Governance of Colleges and Universities, as reprinted in the AAUP Redbook. Action by the faculty is required when a matter falls within an area over which the faculty has primary purview, e.g., when it pertains to the professional conduct of faculty members.

2. When Faculty Committees initiate Policies Which might be Extended to Other College Employees
Independent of this procedure, Committees of the Faculty may initiate policies governing faculty conduct or that of students. Should the President, subsequent to a policy's enactment by the faculty, desire to extend it to cover all employees of the college or the college community generally, he or she shall follow the procedures set forth in Paragraph 4. If, during committee consideration, the President indicates an interest in extending a proposed policy, the chair of the faculty committee which is considering it shall follow the procedures described in Paragraph 3.

3. Special Procedures for Consideration of an All-College Policy by the Faculty

A faculty committee considering an all-college policy shall invite the President, or the President's designate, to meet with the committee during its deliberations. The chair of the faculty committee may also solicit input from others on campus who might be affected by the policy. The committee and the President shall endeavor to draft a proposal acceptable to each. The proposal shall be forwarded to the faculty with the recommendation that it be passed.

4. Final Adoption of an All-College Policy

Once an all-college policy has been passed by the faculty or has been determined not to require faculty action, the President shall distribute it to the community at large inviting written comments within 30 days. During this time the President shall convene a public hearing to receive oral comments. At the end of 30 days and subsequent to any public hearing, the President shall consider the comments and make a decision. The President may institute the policy as written, decide not to enact the policy, or amend the policy. If the President decides to amend a policy requiring faculty approval, the policy will be returned to the faculty committee having jurisdiction for further action as described in Paragraph 3.

Cheating

See description of College policy in Compass, under "Honesty in Academic Work."

Class and Office Hours

1. All syllabi must be submitted through Moodle to the online syllabus archive maintained on the Registrar’s website as specified in Section V. Academic Regulations. Documentation of course meeting times for federal credit hour verification can be found in those syllabi. This information is available to any student, faculty, or staff member who desires such information.

2. All OCAAT courses meet at 9:00 a.m. or at 12:00 p.m. on the first day of the term. All classes end at 3:00 p.m. on the eighteenth day of each term except before Thanksgiving recess, winter vacation, and spring break, when they end at 12:00 p.m. In the event that Thanksgiving recess falls within the fourth term, classes will end at 12:00 p.m. on the Wednesday before Thanksgiving.

3. Faculty assigned classrooms for the entire day are free to schedule their classes to meet as they wish between 8:00 a.m. and 3:00 p.m., Monday through Friday. Faculty sharing classrooms are free to schedule their classes at any time between 8:00 a.m. and 12:00 p.m. (for morning classes) or between 12:00 p.m. and 3:00 p.m. (for afternoon classes), Monday through Friday. The following exceptions apply: 11 a.m. to 12 p.m. on Tuesday is reserved for faculty meetings and 11 a.m. to 12 p.m. on Thursday is reserved for convocations and meeting times.

4. Adjunct courses (numbered in the 500s) and Music Lessons, Ensembles and English or Theatre participations activities (numbered in the 700s) generally meet in the hours after 3 p.m., Monday through Friday, unless all students registered for an adjunct course can arrange to meet at alternate times that do not interfere with their OCAAT course meetings. Adjunct courses cannot meet between the hours of 11:00 a.m. and 12:00 noon on Tuesdays and Thursdays.

5. Courses receiving one course credit typically meet for a minimum of 50 hours of classroom or direct faculty instruction (equivalent to 2¾ hours per day), courses receiving ½ credit meet for a minimum of 25 hours, and courses receiving ¼ credit meet for a minimum of 12.5 hours. Classroom and direct faculty instruction include required group and individual meetings with the primary course instructor and required meetings with ancillary faculty involved in the course (e.g., consulting librarians, consultants in the Center for Teaching and Learning and laboratory instructors). Courses meeting fewer than these minimums include significant projects and activities that extend beyond normally expected out-of-class student work and that are clearly delineated in the course syllabus. (Federal regulations state that each hour of classroom instruction should typically require a minimum of two hours of out-of-class student work.)

6. College-sponsored course and field trips are not bound by the preceding restrictions. There are two cases where the above rules do not apply.125

A. Courses involving Course Trips. Course trips are off-campus activities constituting the main body of teaching and learning for the course. Course trips may be set for a substantial fraction of the term or for the entire term. Instructors should supply as much information as possible about the off-campus components of a course to all students at the time of registration. This information will be published in the Catalogue Supplement on the registrar’s website and be available from the course instructor. In order to facilitate reimbursement to students for missed meals, instructors should provide in writing the dates of the trip and a list of participants to the Business Office at least seven days in advance of the course term at issue. (This will enable the Business Office to distribute refund checks prior to departure.)

B. Courses involving Field Trips that extend beyond normal class hours. These are course-related activities ranging from a few hours to a few days in duration and involving the class outside the normal class hours described above. Instructors should supply as much information as possible about field trips that extend over more than one day to all students at the time of registration. This information will be published in the Catalogue Supplement on the registrar’s website and be available from the course instructor. Information describing field trips that are required must be made available to the class on the first day of the course. The “Absence from Class (Students)” policy also applies to Field Trips. Professors should be sensitive, however, to the students’ other activities and obligations when Field Trips that extend beyond normal class hours are rescheduled. In order to facilitate reimbursement to students for missed meals, instructors should provide in writing the dates of the trip and a list of participants to the Business Office at least seven days in advance of the field trip. (For one-day Field Trips Bon Appétit will provide box lunches. For longer trips, this will enable the Business Office to distribute refund checks prior to departure.)

7. Faculty members are encouraged to establish and keep regular office hours and to be available by appointment for those students who cannot come at the regularly scheduled office hours.

Class Lists

Class rosters are available online. Faculty must submit a final roster to the Registrar’s office by noon on the fourth day of classes each term.

Final grades must be submitted to the Registrar’s office before noon on the Monday following the end of the term unless otherwise stipulated.

Classrooms

Assignment of classrooms is made each term by the Registrar. Faculty may request particular room assignments and should do so at least two weeks before the start of the term when the room is desired. Some rooms contain equipment limiting their use, but, in general, classrooms are not reserved for special purposes.

Any changes in the time or place of meeting must be reported to the Registrar immediately, so that faculty or students can be found in case of emergency.

Class Size

1. Any class of fewer than six students may be cancelled by the Dean of the College, in which case the faculty member involved and the Dean must negotiate the additional administrative or teaching responsibilities needed to give the faculty member a full load. This provision does not apply to Individual Projects, Group Projects, departmental 400-level seminars or special topics courses, or tutorials.

2. The enrollment of courses numbered below 500 shall not exceed 25 students without the permission of the faculty. The Dean of the College shall be responsible for enforcing this policy.

3. While 25 students shall be the usual upper limit on class size, a student may be admitted to a fully enrolled course no later than the Monday before the course begins provided that the student has secured approval from the instructor, the department chair, and the Academic Standing Subcommittee by proving that a hardship situation exists. In all cases the enrollment limit may be exceeded by no more than four students.
4. Exceptions from the provisions of paragraphs 2 and 3 above are "course changes" and may be granted by the faculty using the same procedure by which course changes are approved. ("See Faculty Meetings: Rules of Procedure," Section C, paragraph 1. See also "Committee on Academic Affairs," paragraph 4 under functions, and "Academic Programs [Subcommittee]," paragraph ii under functions.) Grounds for exception are:

   a) pedagogical considerations
   b) space or other facilities limitations at the college
   c) special circumstances related to travel

The first two qualifications above mean that only if the nature of the course demands that it be taught to a class larger or smaller than 25 students, or if limitations of space or facilities make a number lower than 25 obligatory, should the faculty person teaching the course apply for an exception to the 25 student limit. In both of these categories, it is expected that the nature of the course requires a larger or smaller enrollment or that the demands on the instructor or facilities are unusually great and therefore reduction in class size is the only way of relieving an unworkable situation. The third category, "special circumstances related to travel," covers cases where the reasons for the change in enrollment cap are the result of travel required for the course, for example, van size, safety of group, number of campsites or rooms available.

5. At the opening meeting of the course (normally Monday morning of the first day of the term), the instructor should call the roll. If there are any students on the roster who are not present, the instructor is free (but not required) to release the places of those absentees to students who may appear at the door or who have otherwise previously made contact with the instructor. Similarly, if any student present at the first meeting fails to appear at any subsequent meeting on Monday, Tuesday, or Wednesday of the first week, the instructor may give away her or his place.

College-Sponsored Trips

For Course Trips and Field Trips which are part of a regular Cornell course, see "Class and Office Hours" above, Section 4.

For other College-sponsored trips, see “Absence from Class (Students) above.

Commencement and Convocation

All members of the teaching faculty and administrative staff are expected to participate, appropriately attired in academic regalia, in the commencement and other academic processions and ceremonies as for the opening convocation.

Confidentiality of Student Records

The College has adopted by vote of the Faculty a policy to insure the protection and confidentiality of all student records. The following injunctions apply to the teaching faculty:
1. Instructors may not reveal the grade or academic progress of any student to another student. They should exercise discretion in releasing such information to fellow faculty members. Instructors are, therefore, cautioned against posting grades (unless the individuals' names are disguised or replaced by code letters or numbers), setting out packs of tests or papers in such a way that one student in retrieving his or her own paper may see the grades of other students, sending grade reports or other confidential information by the hand of a student in such a manner that the student can see information about other students (such information should be delivered by the faculty member or else placed in an envelope and sealed before being given to a student messenger or dropped into Campus Mail), and discussing other students with special friends, e.g., one's student secretary. Under no circumstances should student secretaries or assistants be permitted to handle, view, process, or transport unsealed confidential information.

2. Instructors should vigilantly guard against leaving confidential information (packs of test papers, their grading book, grading sheets) in places where students may view them, i.e., open or face up on their desks or within easy access of any visitor to their office.

Course Enrollment

1. Students may enroll in courses at the college according to the policies listed in the Academic Catalogue.

2. Apart from formal prerequisites, courses, especially those taught off-campus, may require particular skills or abilities. Faculty members have discretion in determining whether students meet these requirements. They also have the right to determine whether the enrollment of a particular student would have a deleterious effect on the overall instructional climate or course objectives and to deny enrollment in such a case.

3. Faculty members have full authority in the classroom during the course, and they have the right to withdraw from the course any student whose behavior is evidently disruptive or otherwise seriously problematic by notifying the student and the Registrar. The student will receive a grade of W for the course.

4. Students who wish to appeal such a decision must so indicate to the Registrar within 24 hours of notification. The Registrar will take the matter to the Committee on Academic Standing for a timely recommendatory finding. However, the faculty member has final authority in determining enrollment in a course.

Course Evaluation

In adopting a system of student evaluation of instructors, which includes the use of a questionnaire uniformly administered by the entire faculty, the faculty understands that:

1. Student evaluations are only one, and not necessarily the most important source, of information to be used in the evaluation of faculty members. A uniformly administered questionnaire is not the only source of information regarding student judgments of courses and instructors. The results of student evaluations conducted within the departments, using methods of their own devising, should be compiled and also submitted to the Reappointment, Tenure, and Promotion Subcommittee; and the RTP Subcommittee may interview students. Faculty members under review are free to comment to the committee on the meaning and significance of student evaluation.

2. In the evaluation of faculty members, peer evaluation, when carried out thoroughly and conscientiously, will normally be given the most weight. Information, including self-evaluations, provided by the instructors under review, is also important.

3. Members of the RTP Subcommittee, and others involved in the evaluation process, must avoid attributing a spurious reliability and validity to numerical representations of the quality of teaching. The purpose of the evaluation is to make a judgment, not a measurement. No judgment shall be based on a single summary statistic.

4. The Dean of the College shall be responsible for informing the members of the RTP Subcommittee each year of this statement of policy.

Method of Administration

1. Questionnaires will be administered using online survey software. Each full-time instructor shall have at least three courses evaluated; each part-time instructor shall have every course evaluated. An instructor on a half-year sabbatical shall have at least one course evaluated. Faculty who opt not to have all courses evaluated should, to the extent possible, include courses ranging from the introductory to the advanced level among those selected for evaluation, and should prioritize courses of 12 or more students.

2. Students will have the opportunity to complete the questionnaire starting on the 16th day of the block through the first day after the block ends. Having students complete course evaluations during class time is a recommended way to increase response rates. However, instructors are responsible for communicating to their students whether they are expected to complete the online survey during or outside of class time. If an instructor chooses to administer the course evaluation during the class session, they can either stay in the classroom or leave. Regardless of the choices made in administering the survey, the instructor should not attempt to influence student responses.

3. After grades have been turned in, results of the evaluation shall be distributed to the instructor of the course, the instructor's department chair, and the Dean of the College, who will share them with the RTP Subcommittee.
Effective Catalogue

Students are subject to the regulations and requirements in the Catalogue and its supplements (called deTERMinations) in effect at the time they begin their first course at Cornell. A Cornell student who leaves and is later readmitted returns under the Catalogue in effect at the time of readmission.

As for requirements for Majors or Minors, students are expected to complete the requirements set forth in the March issue of deTERMinations in their first year at Cornell. Transfer students admitted with sophomore or higher status fulfill the requirements in force at the time of their first course at Cornell.

If, after a student has begun her or his Cornell career, one or more of the degree requirements are changed, the student may choose to be graduated under either the original or the revised requirements, unless faculty legislation has specified a time when the new regulation is to go into effect.

Faculty Responsibilities

The normal teaching load under the one-course-at-a-time calendar is six courses per year. Any reduction in the normal teaching load for whatever reason must be approved by the Dean of the College.

During those terms in which faculty are not teaching scheduled courses, they engage in activities related to teaching, professional development on or beyond the campus, service, or advancement of the liberal arts. Since committee service, continuity of student advising, and departmental obligations remain important responsibilities throughout the academic year, faculty members who wish to be absent from campus for a term or more must consult with their department and gain the approval of the Dean of the College.

Faculty members contemplating accepting positions outside of Cornell College that may conflict with their paramount responsibilities within the College must consult with their department and gain the approval of the Dean of the College.

Departmental chairs are expected to assume this responsibility as part of their duties without additional compensation or reduction in teaching load.

Final Examinations

1. On the first day of each term the instructor will make explicit how the work of the students will be evaluated. The instructor alone determines whether a final examination is to be part of the evaluation.

2. Classes meet for the last time on the morning or the afternoon of the eighteenth day of the term. Permission for an instructor to require that all course work, papers, and examinations be completed before the eighteenth day must be obtained from the Dean of the College.

3. Student help must not be used in preparing and grading final examinations. Faculty who wish the help of an academic program assistant in preparing final examinations should make arrangements with the academic program assistant at least seven working days in advance of the examination.

4. Cornell does not have an honor system. Teachers are expected to proctor examinations and to remain in the testing room until the last student has turned in his or her paper. Few instructors encounter cases of cheating and plagiarism; however, if you do, retain all evidence (e.g., the answer sheet, a paper) and get in touch with the registrar immediately.
Some students come to grief through ignorance of what the teacher considers plagiarism.
Explain to your students how you wish them to document their papers. Do not assume that they have been taught “your system.” (See the Compass, Honesty in Academic Work.)

First-year Academic Program

1. The First-year Seminars will be taught only by tenure track faculty members.

2. It is expected that all academic departments will contribute to the First-year Academic Program on a regular basis.

Grades

1. There is no institutional policy with respect to determining students' grades. With the exception of the grades of Incomplete and Withdrawal (see below), they are issued entirely on the judgment of the individual instructor.

2. All teacher grade report sheets are due in the Office of the Registrar before noon on the Monday following the end of each term. For graduating seniors, a final grade is due in the Office of the Registrar by 12:00 p.m. on the Thursday before Commencement.

3. After the instructors receive their grade sheet on the last Monday of the term, they are responsible for notifying (before Wednesday noon or the last official meeting of the course) any students who have been taking the course but whose names do not appear on the final grade sheet. Such students must then make the necessary arrangements with the Registrar before Wednesday at 4:30 p.m. or risk losing credit for the course.

4. Faculty may use their own discretion in releasing final grades to students (see Confidentiality of Student Records).

5. A report of grade distribution by departments and by individual faculty member is to be produced after each academic year and distributed to all faculty members by the end of the first week of the following academic year. The report shall include mean and median grades for the college and mean grades for departments and individual faculty members. It shall also include a bar chart of the campus-wide distribution of all grade categories.

Grade of Incomplete

The notation "Incomplete" (I) may only be recorded by an instructor on the Grading
Sheet if the student in question has met the following requirements:
1. Has obtained a special petition from the Registrar's Office (if the student is not on campus, the Registrar will initiate the petition upon request);

2. Has presented the petition to the instructor and has obtained the instructor's endorsement (see below);

3. Has returned the petition to the Registrar with the necessary supporting material (e.g., letter from a physician or psychological counselor, authoritative statement of emergency); and

4. Has received confirmation (a copy of which is also sent to the instructor) from the Registrar that the student qualifies according to College legislation for an "Incomplete."

College policy regarding "Incomplete" requires that the student be doing passing work up to the time when the illness or emergency prevented the student from finishing the work in the course. The student must submit to the Registrar a valid reason for failure to complete the work. In addition to illness or family emergencies (death of parent or serious illness of parent), students may qualify for "Incomplete" if, through no fault of theirs, certain materials needed in their research were delayed or lost (such an excuse requires that the instructor certify to the specific circumstances). Students should not be encouraged to prolong their research or course work beyond the end of the term, and the instructor is expected to make every effort to see that the student can finish on time. An instructor is under no obligation to issue an "Incomplete" if the instructor believes that student is unworthy of such a boon, nor should the instructor entice poor or failing students to petition for an "Incomplete" in order for them to improve their grade.

Instructors should tell their students precisely how they will arrive at their final grades, e.g., the approximate importance of each quiz, test, paper, project, homework assignment, as well as any penalties for taking a make-up test or submitting a paper after the deadline. Because students often misunderstand such things as extra credit or optional tests and assume that such credits will more than offset low scores in required work, make clear who needs to take such tests and how much these options can affect the average calculated from required work.

Grade of Withdrawal

After the third day of the term, a student can withdraw from a course (other than for reasons of health) only on the fifteenth day of the term, and then if and only if the instructor can certify that the student has:

1. complied fully with the instructor’s attendance policy;

2. taken all the tests and turned in all the papers or projects that were due by the 15th day;

3. made, in the opinion of the instructor, a determined effort to learn the material, complete the work, and to participate in the class.

The instructor is expected to work with the student to diagnose the problems and to suggest alternatives that may allow the student to continue or may encourage the student...
to try harder. However, between the sixth and fourteenth days of the term, the instructor may release a student if the instructor believes that the student cannot keep up in the course because the student, when compared with the others in the class, has not had adequate preparation or is deficient in a skill essential for success in the course. The instructor must describe the problem in a petition to the Subcommittee on Academic Standing and also certify that the student attended faithfully and tried to do the work assigned. As another alternative, if the instructor believes that the student can profit from auditing the course, then the instructor is free to require the student to attend but to exempt the student from homework assignments, papers, and tests, in order for the student to be eligible to drop the course on the fifteenth day.

The option of withdrawal is intended only for students who are conscientious and diligent but cannot keep up. Students who cut classes, are cavalier in their attitude towards course work, and neglect to consult their instructor when they experience difficulties do not qualify for this special consideration, should not be allowed to drop the course, and will receive at the end of the term whatever grade has been earned in the course.

Legal Use of Software

Respect for intellectual labor and creativity is vital to academic discourse and enterprise. This principle applies to works of all authors and publishers in all media. It encompasses respect for the right to acknowledgement, right to privacy, and right to determine the form, manner, and terms of publication and distribution.

Because electronic information is volatile and easily reproduced, respect for the work and personal expression of others is especially critical in computer environments. Violations of authorial integrity, including plagiarism, invasion of privacy, unauthorized access, and copyright violations, may be grounds for sanctions against members of the academic community.

User Account Network policy is available to faculty on the Academic Computing website at: http://www.cornellcollege.edu/computing_services/technology_policy/index.shtml

Petitions

The following guidelines are recommended to all faculty members who are responsible for assisting a student to petition the Academic Standing Subcommittee or who are involved in the course for which the waiver, exemption, or permission is being sought:

1. Do not sign a petition until satisfied as to its validity, correctness, and completeness. A petition is often a contract, and you ought to know what you have contracted for by signing.

2. Your signature, unless accompanied by a note of explanation, will be interpreted as a sign of your perfunctory approval, which in many cases is all that is necessary. However, when you believe that there is a special circumstance which would justify the Subcommittee’s approval of the request or which would assist the Subcommittee to reach the best decision for the student concerned, you should submit on the petition or separately your own comments. Special circumstances require a more detailed recommendation.
3. Petitions are approved only when the student has demonstrated a compelling reason for the waiver or exemption. The simple fact that a student wants to do something normally denied to students is not a compelling reason. Unless the student addresses the special circumstances which necessitate the request, the petition may be denied. You may include a statement of your own to add weight to the student's request.

4. Petitions for Group Projects contain sections for "Evaluation." Unless the method of evaluation is described in some detail, the Subcommittee cannot grant approval. Group projects are only graded credit/no credit.

Students with Disabilities

Section 504 of the Rehabilitation Act of 1973 (Public Law 93-112) was the first federal civil rights legislation designed to protect the rights of individuals with disabilities. It applies to both children and adults with disabilities from preschool through adult education. The mission of this legislation was to maximize “the opportunity to be fully integrated into mainstream American life.” (Handicapped Requirements Handbook, [1993, January]. Washington, DC: Thompson Publishing Group.)

Section 504 of the Rehabilitation Act of 1973 states:

“No otherwise qualified handicapped individual in the United States, as defined in section 706(7) of this title, shall, solely by reason of his handicap, be excluded from participation in, be denied the benefits of, or be subjected to discrimination under any program or activity receiving Federal financial assistance…” (29 United States Code 794)

The Americans with Disabilities Act of 1990 states that a handicap shall be defined as “a physical or mental impairment that substantially limits one or more of the major life activities.” (42 United States Code 12102[2])

The Office for Civil Rights, Department of Education, states that any postsecondary education program which receives Federal financial assistant (34 Code of Federal Regulations 104.41) “shall make such modifications to its academic requirements as are necessary to ensure that such requirements do not discriminate or have the effect of discriminating, on the basis of handicap, against a qualified handicapped applicant or student.” (34 Code of Federal Regulations 104.44[a]). In addition to academic adjustments, “a recipient…shall take such steps as are necessary to ensure that no handicapped student is denied the benefits of, excluded for participation in, or otherwise subjected to discrimination…because of the absence of educational auxiliary aids for students with impaired sensory, manual, or speaking skills.” (34 Code of Federal Regulations 104.44[d])

NOTE: Copies of these laws and administrative rules may be obtained from the Office of Academic Affairs and Student Affairs.

Definition of a Learning Disability

Although Section 504 does not give a detailed definition of learning disabilities, a group of nine organizations with a major interest in the field of education for students with learning disabilities has developed the following definition:
Learning disabilities is a generic term that refers to a heterogeneous group of disorders manifested by significant difficulties in the acquisition and use of listening, speaking, reading, writing, reasoning, or mathematical abilities. These disorders are intrinsic to the individual and presumed to be due to central nervous system dysfunctions. Even though a learning disability may occur concomitantly with other handicapping conditions (e.g., sensory impairment, mental retardation, social and emotional disturbance) or environmental influences (e.g., cultural differences, insufficient/inappropriate instruction, psychogenic factors), it is not the direct result of those conditions or influences.” (National Joint Committee on Learning Disabilities, quoted from Hammill, et al. [1981] Learning Disability Quarterly, 4, 336-342. The article outlines procedures followed in the development of the definition, lists committee membership, and explains the committee’s intention in the wording of the definition.)

Note: Copies of this article are available from the Dean of Students.

Academic Adjustments (Reasonable Accommodation)

The HEATH Resource Center (National Clearinghouse on Postsecondary Education for Individuals with Disabilities) and AHEAD (The Association on Higher Education and Disability) reviewed 120 model programs providing services for persons with disabilities. They have published a guide of commonly accepted academic adjustments for students with disabilities. The Office of Special Advising uses these resources when working with students and course professors. Appropriate academic adjustments are determined on an individual basis and are matched to address specific aspects of a disability.

The Code of Federal Regulations, as quoted in the previous section defines academic adjustments. Section 104.44 contains descriptions of modifications made to the learning environment that help to create equal educational opportunity. It applies to steps that can be taken without significant difficulty or expense to allow otherwise qualified students to fulfill course requirements by limiting as much as possible the effects of their disability on their performance. The concept of academic adjustments is not aimed at giving students with disabilities undue special advantages in order to help them pass nor does it require that they be graded on a different scale from their classmates.

The terms academic adjustment and reasonable accommodation are used interchangeably in the literature on disability law. Technically Academic adjustment refers to the educational arena and reasonable accommodation is used in the work setting.

Examples of academic adjustments for students with learning disabilities:

- Modified testing procedures which include, but are not limited to: extension of time for tests, use of oral or tape recorded test questions, or provision of a less distracting test environment such as a separate room.

- Course syllabus and book lists provided upon student request one block prior to the term in which the course is taught.

- Notetakers permitted in the classroom. Instructors may be requested to provide a copy of the lecture notes or to assist in the arrangement of a notetaker for the student.
• Allotment of extra time to copy information from the chalkboard or overhead projector.

• Spelling and grammar proofreaders provided by the Writing Resource Center for written assignments.

• Spelling errors not counted against a student’s exam grade when exams are written in class or permission to use dictionary or spell checker during the exam.

• Early registration for specific classes allowed when appropriate, as in cases where taped texts need to be ordered in advance.

• Permission to tape record lectures for specific course use. This usage will be specified in a signed release with the instructor prior to taping.

Academic Adjustments for students with physical disabilities (in addition to those listed above):

• Seating arrangements modified to provide visual access to the instructor, the blackboard and the overhead projection screen and/or auditory access to the instructor. Also seating access to a notetaker or an electrical outlet for tape recording lectures will be provided.

• Instructors are asked to lecture facing the class.

• Braillers permitted in the classroom.

• Prior registration and exemption from Accommodation Evening registration permitted in cases of visual, auditory, or mobility impairments.

• Classrooms will be moved to accessible buildings in the event a mobility impaired student enrolls in the class.

Qualifications for service:

A student qualifies for disability services at Cornell College when:

• he or she obtains documentation of the disability from a medical doctor (MD), Educational or School Psychologist (PH.D), or other individual licensed by the state of origin to diagnose learning or physical disabilities, and

• he or she presents such documentation to the Registrar’s Office where it is placed on file for confidential record.

Cornell College reserves the right to determine what constitutes appropriate documentation.

Syllabi

Course Information on the First Day of Class

All Cornell College instructors must post a course syllabus no later than the first day of each class they teach, on the Cornell College web site. The syllabus must contain (at least) the following information:
1. Instructor’s name, office location and contact information (telephone and e-mail address).
2. Required texts (title, authors, and edition) and other required course materials.
3. A description of the course and major course objectives including learning objectives related to the Educational Priorities and Outcomes of the College.
4. Course requirements (such as major assignments, deadlines, exams, and required prerequisites) and policies (if any) pertaining to attendance, assignments, and exams.
5. A statement about the grading process and criteria.
6. Class meeting times.
7. Statements on the following:

   (a) Academic Honesty expectations. This must include the following statement:

   Cornell College expects all members of the Cornell community to act with academic integrity. An important aspect of academic integrity is respecting the work of others. A student is expected to explicitly acknowledge ideas, claims, observations, or data of others, unless generally known. When a piece of work is submitted for credit, a student is asserting that the submission is her or his work unless there is a citation of a specific source. If there is no appropriate acknowledgement of sources, whether intended or not, this may constitute a violation of the College’s requirement for honesty in academic work and may be treated as a case of academic dishonesty. The procedures regarding how the College deals with cases of academic dishonesty appear in The Catalogue, under the heading “Academic Honesty.”

   (b) Students with disabilities. This must include the following statement:

   Students who need accommodations for learning disabilities must provide documentation from a professional qualified to diagnose learning disabilities. For more information see cornellcollege.edu/disabilities/documentation/index.shtml

   Students requesting services may schedule a meeting with the disabilities services coordinator as early as possible to discuss their needs and develop an individualized accommodation plan. Ideally, this meeting would take place well before the start of classes.

   At the beginning of each course, the student must notify the instructor within the first three days of the term of any accommodations needed for the duration of the course.

   (c) A summary statement of how the course supports the Educational Priorities and Outcomes of the College.

   Additional policies and requirements (if any) should be noted.

Registration

It is the duty of faculty members to counsel and assist students with registration.
VI. ADMINISTRATIVE INFORMATION

The information in this section is updated annually with input from appropriate administrators.

Administration Office Hours

Administrative offices are open Monday through Friday 8:00 a.m. to 12:00 noon and 1:00 p.m. to 4:30 p.m. during the academic year.

Automobile Registration and Parking (Click here for parking maps, regulations and registration forms.)

All faculty and staff who operate or park their vehicles on College property must register their vehicles and are expected to comply fully with the College’s parking rules and regulations. Failure to do so may result in suspension and/or termination of parking privileges.

Bookstore

The College contracts with Follett Higher Education Group for bookstore services. Follett uses an on-line ordering system called Online Adoptions, which allows faculty to easily order texts and other course materials from the Cornell College Bookstore webpage. It is important to recognize, however, that there are a number of exigencies in obtaining textbooks. Faculty should use the following dates as guidelines for ordering texts:

- The bookstore will place a “first call to all faculty members for books/course materials orders for the following academic year by February 1 with a February 15th response date. Faculty must respond in one of the following four ways:
  - Turn in the books/materials information for the courses (The ISBN#, title, author, publisher, and edition of the textbook will be needed to place the order.)
  - Indicate that the information is “to be determined”
  - Indicate that no books or materials will be needed for the course
  - Indicate that you intend to continue use of the same books/materials last used in the course.

- Faculty indicating that the materials are “to be determined” should place the order with the bookstore as soon as practicable after February 15th.

- Final deadline for submission of orders for books are as follows:
  - May 15th for Terms 1-3
  - September 15th for Terms 4-6
  - December 15th for Terms 7-8

Faculty adherence to these guidelines will help the college show a good faith effort to meet the federal regulations and will be beneficial for our students. There may be a few occasions in which it will not be possible to meet the deadlines listed above (visiting faculty, late changes to the course schedule, etc.), and in these situations orders should be placed with the bookstore in as timely a manner as possible. Faculty should check to be sure the books have arrived with the bookstore in as timely a manner as possible. Faculty should check to be sure the books have arrived before the term begins.

The sale of classroom supplies, books, and materials to students is the responsibility of the College Bookstore. The sale of these items through the Bookstore benefits the College with returned commissions. Faculty members are not to sell books and supplies directly to students; they should arrange with the Bookstore manager to stock the items which students are required to purchase.

Laboratory manuals, studio supplies and similar materials prepared by members of the faculty for student use are to be sold by the Bookstore.

Campus e-Newsletter/Master Calendar

The Cornell Campus e-Newsletter is distributed by e-mail weekly during the academic year by the Office of Marketing and Communications. The Master Calendar offers a complete overview of campus events and dates into the future.

Campus Security (Click on link for security services, safety information, and resources.)

The Office of Campus Safety provides 24 hour campus safety coverage, year-round. Officers on campus provide routine patrols of the entire campus and maintain and enforce all parking regulations. Campus Safety Officers work in conjunction with staff members of the Student Affairs division and closely with Mount Vernon Police Department to ensure the safety and security of all members and guests of the Cornell College Community.

The Center for Teaching and Learning (Click on link for additional information on the services and resources available in The Center for Teaching and Learning.)

A unique aspect of academic support at Cornell College is the Center for Teaching and Learning, which is involved with students throughout the course of their assignments and with faculty as they design learning experiences for students. The Center brings together the Consulting Librarians, Audiovisual Services, the Writing Studio, the Academic Technology Studio, and Quantitative Reasoning Studio—all housed in Cole Library—to support students’ development of information literacy and critical thinking in collaboration with faculty. Information literacy can be defined as skills, values, and attitudes for articulating an information need, accessing information, evaluating and processing information, and using and communicating ideas, within the context of social and ethical implications of information use.

Faculty Offices

Office assignments are made by the Dean of the College. To the extent possible, fulltime faculty members will be assigned individual offices.

Information Technology (Click on link for information on technology policies and services.)

The Office of Information Technology (IT) supports the computer and telecommunications needs of Cornell College.

The Office of Intercultural Life (ICL) at Stoner House is dedicated to providing quality programs and services to ALL students at Cornell College.

Keys and Identification Cards (Click on link for information regarding the issuance of keys.)

Keeping the Cornell community safe is a top priority for all. In an effort to ensure this happens we have determined it best practice to tighten up on keys and ID card issuance.

Effective immediately, we ask that faculty and staff turn in to Residence Life, any key(s) they are not currently utilizing. Additionally, if you have a master key and don’t absolutely need it, please turn it in as well. If you need a key to a specific office, you can trade your master key for the office key. All employees are expected to keep keys in a safe location. If you lose a key, report it immediately to the Residence Life Office. Any lost key will require that locks be changed and a $50 per lock rekeying charge will be charged to the employee. The costs associated with rekeying due to lost master keys can be significant. If you end your employment with Cornell, you need to return all keys or lock change charges will apply.

Should you need to access a space infrequently used, or you have locked yourself out of your office, please contact Campus Safety for assistance.

It is also important that identification (ID) cards be issued to all employees. If you don’t have one, or have lost yours please report to the Residence Life Office to acquire an ID card. For safety reasons, it’s important to be able to identify Cornell employees and these cards allow us to do so. Additionally, ID cards are necessary to acquire certain services on campus. There is a $10 charge to replace a lost or stolen identification card.

Faculty Development

Recognizing the close connection between effective teaching and intellectual and professional stature, the College encourages and expects scholarly or creative activity among its faculty as a component of effective teaching or as an end in itself. Since teaching is the clear emphasis at Cornell, faculty members are expected to devote appropriate time and energy to this aspect of professional activity. Extensive reading in the discipline, revision of courses when warranted, and development of new courses when appropriate to the program in a department are expected activities. In sum, faculty must attend to current developments in their field as they pertain to their pedagogical activities.

Moreover, the institution recognizes that scholarly and creative activities inside and outside of Cornell College are valuable to the individual faculty member involved and to the College as a whole. The College therefore both desires and fosters such activities and is pleased that faculty development monies are available each year in several categories. The specific guidelines, including funding support in each category, are announced year by year. Family and Medical Leave (Revised February 2013)

Because employees may find it necessary to take a temporary leave from their jobs to address family medical responsibilities or their own serious health condition, and in order to comply with the Family and Medical Leave Act of 1993 (FMLA), the College has established the following family and medical leave policy and procedures.
Eligibility

- To be eligible, faculty must have taught a minimum of five (5) blocks during the 12-month period preceding the start of the leave. Leaves of absence will be granted for the following reasons:

Medical Leave

- Employee's serious health condition that renders him/her unable to perform his/her essential job functions.

Family Leave

- The birth, adoption, foster care placement, or first-year care of a child.
- To care for a spouse, domestic partner, child, or parent of the employee if that individual has a serious health condition.

Service Member Leave

- A qualifying exigency arising out of a covered family member's (spouse, parent, son, daughter*) active duty or call to active duty in the Armed Forces, National Guard and Reserves. The military member must be deployed to a foreign country.
- To care for a covered family member (spouse, parent, son, daughter, next of kin of the covered service member) who has incurred an injury or illness in the line of duty while on active duty in the Armed Forces provided that such injury or illness may render the family member medically unfit to perform duties of the member's office, grade, rank or rating, OR a veteran of the Armed Forces (effective 3/8/13).

*Parent means a biological, adoptive, step or foster father or mother, or any other individual who stood in loco parentis to you when you were a child. This term does not include parents “in law.”

Son or daughter means your biological, adopted, or foster child, a stepchild, a legal ward, or a child for whom you stood in loco parentis, and who is of any age.

Next of kin is the nearest blood relative, other than the spouse, parent, son, or daughter, in the following order of priority:

1) a blood relative who has been designated in writing by the service member for purposes of FMLA military caregiver leave
2) blood relatives who have been granted legal custody of the service member
3) brothers and sisters
4) grandparents
5) aunts and uncles
6) first cousins

A covered service member is a veteran discharged under conditions other than dishonorable within the five-year period before you first take military caregiver leave to care for that veteran who is undergoing medical treatment, recuperation, or therapy for a serious illness or injury.

For any veteran who was discharged prior to March 8, 2013, the period of time between October 28, 2009 and March 8, 2013 will not count as part of the five-year period. For example, if your family member became a veteran on October 28, 2009 then you may begin to use your military caregiver leave entitlement at any time up until March 8, 2018. As long as your military caregiver leave begins within five years of the veteran’s discharge, the 12-month period may extend beyond the five-year period.

If the leave is for birth, adoption, or foster care placement, the leave must be completed within 12 months of the date of birth or placement.

*All employees, regardless of hours worked or tenure, are eligible for 8 weeks of unpaid leave for disability due to pregnancy, childbirth, or legal abortion under Iowa Code 216.6.

Procedures for Requesting Leave

Employees must give the College 30 days advance notice for foreseeable family or medical leaves. If the need for family or medical leave is not foreseeable, notice must be given by the employee as soon as possible and practicable. Except in cases of extreme medical emergencies, the employee is expected to advise his/her supervisor as soon as he/she knows of the need for and expected duration of the leave.

Faculty requesting leave must complete a Family and Medical Leave Request Form from the Human Resources Office and provide copies to his/her Chair, the Dean of the College and the Human Resources Office.

Any request for leave based on a serious health condition, whether it involves the faculty member or a family member, must be supported by the appropriate medical certification. In all cases of leave for a serious health condition, the College reserves the right to request another medical opinion at the College's expense.

For service member leave arising out of exigency, the College reserves the right to request supporting documentation showing that the service member has been called to active duty.

Faculty will be notified in writing by the Human Resources Office of the terms and conditions of their leave. This written notice will reflect the decision of the department Chair, and the Dean of the College in consultation with the Director of Human Resources.

Length of Leave

Faculty can take up to twelve weeks of leave under this policy during any twelve-month period. This leave may be taken intermittently or applied to a reduced work-week or work-day schedule. The leave will be measured as a rolling twelve month period measured backwards from the date any leave was taken under this policy. When both husband and wife work for the College, they are limited to a combined total of 12 weeks for birth or placement of a child, the care of a parent with a serious health condition, or exigency leave for a service member.

Substituting Paid Leave

Sick time will run concurrently with leave taken under FMLA and will be used to cover the missed pay in full until the sick leave runs out, or the faculty member returns from leave, whichever occurs first. Up to two paid teaching terms of time off are available to the faculty member for the birth of a child. Up to one paid term is available for other types of leave.

Where other College policies provide a greater leave benefit than the Family and Medical Leave, the other policy will prevail. However, any leave under the FMLA will run concurrently with such leave until exhausted.
Workers' Compensation Medical Leave

A faculty member who is injured on the job will receive workers’ compensation following 3 days off from work as provided under state compensation law. If off work more than 14 calendar days, then worker’s compensation will retroactively pay for the first 3 days off. The workers' compensation leave and FMLA will run concurrently.

Benefits During Leave

Group Health Insurance: During an approved leave the College will maintain the faculty member’s group health insurance. The faculty member is required to continue to pay his/her contribution for medical insurance cost. The contribution will be deducted from the faculty member’s paycheck during the leave if the faculty member is being paid. If the faculty member is on unpaid leave, the contribution will be billed to his/her Cornell account which is payable upon receipt of the statement.

Other Benefits: All other benefits normally provided to a faculty member will be provided to the faculty member only if permitted by the plan document governing the provision of benefits. Upon return from FMLA, a faculty member may be returned to the same participant status in those employee benefit plans in which the faculty member participated prior to the FMLA leave. In the event that a faculty member fails to return from family or medical leave, or returns but stays less than 30 days, the faculty member will owe the College the cost of any benefits provided during the entire duration of the leave, including Cornell’s contribution to the faculty member’s group health benefits. No such amount will be owed if there is a recurrence or onset of a serious health condition or, in the opinion of the College, there is a change of circumstance beyond the faculty member’s control.

Return from Leave

Faculty members returning from leave will be reinstated to the same or equivalent position. If the faculty member was on medical leave, medical certification may be required verifying ability to return to work.

Failure to return to work after the expiration of the leave will result in termination of employment and benefits, with the exception of COBRA benefits.

Health Insurance (See Employee Handbook)

Health Savings Account (See Employee Handbook)

Hilltop Fitness & Roe Howard Fitness Club Memberships (See Employee Handbook)
Leaves of Absence

Faculty members may also request leaves of absence for up to one year assignments under grants from foundations, visiting professorships at other colleges and universities, appointments with government, business, performing artist groups, faculty exchange programs or other similar activities and programs which increase professional or teaching effectiveness. These must be arranged in consultation with the Dean of the College and require an endorsement by the department involved. During such leaves Cornell salary and social security benefits are discontinued but you may continue your existing coverage under the College’s health, dental, accidental death and dismemberment, life insurance, long-term disability and vision plans. Additionally tuition exchange privileges continue for qualified dependents.

Time spent on a leave of absence will not necessarily count as part of the years of service accumulated for a sabbatical leave. In general, time spent on a leave of absence should be for purposes of research or creative activity or for engaging in activities in programs that increase the normal time between sabbatical leaves. A leave of absence for purposes of employment as an instructor at another institution will not be considered as part of the normal time between sabbatical leaves.

It is the policy of the college not to grant a sabbatical leave for the 2 years immediately following a leave of absence. Leaves of absence may have to be limited in order not to interfere with the teaching program.

A faculty member who teaches in a Cornell off-campus program or in an ACM program is not considered to be on leave of absence but rather on an off-campus teaching assignment for Cornell. Such an assignment will, of course, be considered as part of the normal time between sabbatical leave. Faculty on off-campus or ACM programs continue to receive salary from Cornell and receive full Cornell benefits.

Applications for leaves are made to the Dean of the College whose recommendation is made to the President. All leaves must be approved by the President and the Executive Committee of the Board of Trustees.

Life/AD&D Insurance (See Employee Handbook)

Long Term Disability Insurance (See Employee Handbook)

Moving Allowance

The College will reimburse newly appointed members of the faculty for moving expenses. The amount to be reimbursed is determined by the Dean’s Office. Personal travel expenses are not included.

Professional Development/Travel

Professional development funds provided by the college are intended to encourage faculty travel related to professional development and to distribute the opportunity to do so as equitably as possible among all members of the full-time teaching faculty. These funds may be used to support professional travel and any other legitimate professional expenses that are tax deductible under IRS code. Such expenses may include expenses related to attending an academic or professional meeting (transportation, lodging, meals, registration), annual memberships in professional organizations, subscriptions to professional discipline related publications, books, software, and other scholarly materials. Computing equipment and accessories are not considered allowable expenses since these items are generally not deductible under IRS code. In addition, some professional travel support is available to other persons with faculty status such as librarians, lecturers, and academic instructional staff.

Receipts for monies to be reimbursed must be submitted within thirty days of incurring the expense.

Sabbaticals

After six (6) years of full-time service faculty may apply for one semester off at full pay or two semesters at one-half pay. Faculty members taking a one-semester sabbatical leave will teach three courses during the rest of that academic year. A limited number of sabbatical leaves are available each year. Fringe benefits continue while the individual is on sabbatical leave.

The purpose of the sabbatical leave program is to encourage study and research which will increase the professional effectiveness of the faculty member. It is not to allow faculty simply to collect sabbatical pay from Cornell while at the same time accepting employment elsewhere for salary. An applicant should provide an outline in writing of the proposed study and research to be attempted while on sabbatical, and indicate its importance for the faculty member’s professional development.

Faculty planning to secure sabbatical leaves should consult with the Dean of the College no later than the beginning of the sixth year and arrange for a period of absence.

It is the understanding of the college that faculty will return to Cornell from sabbatical leave for a minimum of two years of service following the leave.

The Board of Trustees may from time to time delegate the responsibility for the performance of any functions deriving from these powers to appropriate officers or employees of the College, and the Board may revoke or modify any such delegation at any time.

SECTION 2. ELECTION AND TERM OF TRUSTEES. The Board of Trustees shall consist of thirty-nine (39) elected members and the President of the College as a non-voting ex officio member. The elected Trustees of the Corporation shall be elected by the Board at the Annual Meeting (Fall) of the Board. The Trustees shall be elected in three (3) classes of thirteen (13), each for a term of three (3) years. Each term shall begin on the day after the Annual Meeting (Fall) at which they were elected. Vacancies on the Board may be filled for any unexpired term at any regular or special meeting of the Board and Trustees so elected shall be eligible to serve three (3) consecutive three (3)-year terms thereafter. In addition, the President of the Alumni Association Board of Directors shall be a non-voting ex officio member of the Board so long as he or she shall continue in that office and may designate an alternate member of the Alumni Association Board of Directors to represent him or her in the event of his or her inability to attend any meeting of the Board.

At each Annual Meeting (Fall), the Governance Committee shall present to the Board its recommended candidates for Chair and Chair-Elect. Any individual retiring as Chair shall be eligible to serve as a Trustee for an additional three (3)-year term on the Board (which term shall commence when the individual leaves office even if that would otherwise violate the three consecutive three (3)-year term limitation rule). The Chair and Chair-Elect shall be entitled SECTION 5. REMOVAL OF TRUSTEES. A majority of the voting Trustees of any Committee shall constitute a quorum for the transaction of business at any meeting of such Committee. SECTION 4. WAIVER OF NOTICE. Whenever any notice is required by these Bylaws to be given to any member of the Board, any member of the Executive Committee, or any member of other Standing or special Committee of the Corporation, a waiver of such notice in writing signed by such member, whether before or after the time stated therein or required for such notice, shall be equivalent to the giving of such notice.
