

Health Professions Committee (HPC) Application Guide

The process of becoming a competitive applicant for graduate and professional schools in the health professions has already begun. You've successfully completed the prerequisites required for the schools you intend to apply for, acquired practical experience in healthcare, demonstrated a commitment to service through volunteer work, and developed good relationships with your professors and mentors who will be providing you with strong letters of recommendation. The time has finally arrived for you to put this all together into an application showing you in the best possible light.

This packet contains procedures and policies meant to help you understand the process of applying to graduate and professional programs in healthcare. Unfortunately, even the most qualified student can compromise an application by not paying attention to "the process." Because you will be just one of over 50,000 other similarly qualified applicants, it is imperative that all procedures are followed to the letter to ensure the professional schools see you at your best.

All Cornell College students and graduates of Cornell College applying to the following programs are strongly encouraged to use the HPC: allopathic medical schools (MD), osteopathic (DO) medical school, physical therapy (DPT), veterinary medicine (DVM), physician scientist (MD PhD), physician assistant (PA), pharmacy (PharmD), and dentistry (DDS). Individuals pursuing healthcare fields not listed are welcome to utilize the HPC and should contact the Associate Director of Dimensions for additional information.

Health Professions Committee

The HPC serves in an advisory capacity to students planning to pursue a career in the healthcare professions and is responsible for the preparation of a committee letter of recommendation to support your application to professional school. The committee is comprised of 4 individuals:

1. Barbara Christie-Pope, PhD
Professor, Department of Biology
HPC Chair

2. Craig Tepper, PhD
Professor, Department of Biology

3. Mark Kendall, MS
Associate Director, Dimensions

4. One additional Cornell College faculty or staff member of your choosing. We encourage you to choose as your 4th committee member someone who is not a member of the natural sciences faculty or staff.

The Process

Applying to professional school is a fairly long process. You should be knowledgeable of several key deadlines if your goal is to begin a program immediately following graduation. First, you must complete courses preparing you to take the MCAT/DAT/GRE no later than the summer before your senior year (if you hope to enroll in school immediately following graduation.) Second, you submit your primary application to a centralized application service specific to the discipline you are choosing to pursue during the summer following your junior year. Applicants provide the application service with all of their application materials including transcripts, co-curricular activities, admittance examination scores, and a personal statement. There are fees associated with the use of centralized application services.

The centralized application websites and the HPC Guide are great resources available to help you learn and understand the application process. The HPC strongly recommends you review this guide and the corresponding centralized application website in their entirety before beginning the application process.

Third, once you submit your primary application through a centralized application service, schools will ask you for secondary applications. The secondary application includes additional and often more specific essays, additional information regarding your academic background and extracurricular activities, and recommendation letters. Be mindful that some schools ask all applicants for a secondary application, and other schools ask only preferred applicants for secondary applications. There are additional fees for processing secondary applications, generally between $30-$100 per school. Keep in mind that many schools have a very short (2-4 weeks) turnaround time for secondary applications.

The Committee Meeting

The HPC meets on a first completed, first served basis. The HPC will not meet until your entire HPC application has been submitted to the Associate Director of Dimensions.

Some centralized application services require your letter of recommendation writers to submit their letters to the centralized application service directly. We strongly recommend that you communicate the HPC process to your letter writers, and only have them submit the letter of recommendation once you have received feedback from your committee.

Please keep in mind that if you are taking an entrance examination or retaking an examination later than April or May, your scores may not arrive before the July 1st deadline. In this instance, you must still submit all other materials by the HPC's deadline. A committee letter of recommendation cannot be generated until your final scores have been received. The committee uses your final scores, as well as your other application materials, to determine your strength as a candidate in their committee letter.

The materials in the table on page 4 are due to the Associate Director of Dimensions on July 1st for all medical school (MD, DO, MD-PhD) applicants. Applicants pursuing other health professions should discuss a deadline with the Associate Director of Dimensions, as the application timelines of other health professions differ from the medical school application timeline.

Note: The HPC will not review application materials that have already been submitted to the centralized application service. The HPC will also not write a committee letter of recommendation for students who submit their centralized application before receiving feedback from the HPC.

The Committee Letter

Many medical schools and other professional schools require a committee letter of recommendation to support your application to their school. It is a very important part of your application.

The committee letter is created using a combination of the individual letters of recommendation you ask to be written on your behalf, your transcripts, your personal statement, test scores, resume, and any personal interactions and knowledge the members of the committee have had with you. The committee letter supplements your 3 individual letters of recommendation. By signing the attached waiver, the HPC may also discuss your academic achievements with faculty members and administrators who don't serve on your Committee, so that the letter can reflect the breadth of your academic and personal life at Cornell.

Letters of Recommendation

Requesting letters of recommendation and the writing of letters should take place in late spring or early summer as you are completing the primary application. Contact each of your evaluators regarding the writing of a recommendation letter on your behalf. Your evaluators should know you well enough to provide an in-depth evaluation of your suitability for your chosen career. For applicants who are applying while enrolled in undergraduate coursework, at least 2 letters should come from Cornell faculty. The third letter can be another faculty member or from a person with whom you have conducted research, participated in an internship, or worked in professional setting. Relatives and family friends are not appropriate letter writers. You should request these letters well in advance of the July 1st HPC deadline to allow your evaluators sufficient time to write and forward the letters.

To assist them in writing you the best possible letter, provide your evaluators with:

- Your resume, transcript, and personal statement
- The request for letter of recommendation form included in this guide
- Guidelines for Writing a Letter of Evaluation for a Medical School Applicant

Letters of recommendation should be signed and printed on letterhead. If your evaluator is able to include an electronic signature on his/her recommendation letter, letters can be e-mailed to the Associate Director of Dimensions at mkendall@cornellcollege.edu.

Alternatively, your evaluator can mail the letter to:

Mark Kendall
Associate Director of Dimensions
Cornell College
600 First Street SW
Mount Vernon, Iowa, 52314

Letters are sent to the Dimensions office at Cornell College for the purpose of creating your committee letter and for assisting you in transmitting them to the schools you are applying to. The Associate Director uploads your committee letter and the letters of recommendation you want sent to each school for you. You will receive an e-mail letting you know that the upload has occurred. At Cornell, letters will be kept strictly confidential within your HPC file and will be kept under lock and key in the Dimensions office.

Note: Discuss letter deadlines with the Associate Director of Dimensions before requesting that your letter writers submit their letters of recommendation to the centralized application service when applicable.

The HPC is not obligated to accommodate students who fail to adhere to the policies and deadlines stated in this manual. In addition, if you do not utilize the HPC's assistance, faculty members at Cornell may decline to write individual letters of recommendations on your behalf. In addition, if you fail to meet deadlines and/or do not follow procedures, the committee could be delayed in providing your committee letter of recommendation.

Application Timeline for Medical School Applicants

If you are applying in the 2018 application cycle, meaning you hope to start school fall 2018:

- April/May/June 2017: Take admission exam
- May 2017: AMCAS opens to students
- ~June 1, 2017: AMCAS begins accepting applications
- July 1, 2016: HPC materials due to the Associate Director of Dimensions
- July/August 2017: Your HPC meets, provides you with initial feedback on your application materials, and writes and submits your committee letter
- July/August 2017: Finalize and submit primary AMCAS application after receiving and implementing feedback from the HPC
- August/September 2017: Start receiving and completing secondary applications. (This occurs once your application is verified by the centralized application service and forwarded to the schools you select on the application. The verification process can take anywhere from 3-8 weeks after submitting your centralized application.)
- Fall 2017: Set up a mock interview with the Associate Director of Dimensions

Helpful Hints

Letters of Recommendation

You can determine which individual letters you'd like sent to each school by looking at the types of letters each program requires on their websites and specifying where you'd like each letter sent on the centralized application service. Your committee letter should be sent to each school you apply to.

Résumé

You are required to prepare a résumé to help the HPC and your evaluators prepare their letters. Your resume should be polished and inclusive of all of your medical and non-medical related experiences beginning with Cornell College. Experiences include all paid and unpaid work experiences including, but not limited to, leadership, campus involvement, community service, internships, shadowing, and research. We strongly recommend you utilize the Career and Civic Engagement Center and/or the Associate Director of Dimensions to help polish your resume.

Personal Statement

Don't underestimate the power of the personal statement. This can give your application the edge that results in an interview. It should be prepared with great care, revised and reworked until every word counts and communicates to the reader your character and personality. The statement you submit to the HPC may not be the final one you use in your application, but it should serve the same purpose. We will use it to ask any additional questions we may have of you and to write your committee letter.

Your personal statement should typically be one single-spaced page in length (for AMCAS it cannot exceed 5300 characters; AACOMAS, 3000 characters; PTCAS, 4500 characters; AADSAS, one page) and may contain the following information, keeping the intent of the statement in mind:

The HPC strongly recommends you seek out the services of the Associate Director of Dimensions, The Berry Career Institute, the Writing Studio, and/or other faculty members to help you with revisions. Dimensions also has several writing and essay guides to assist you. The HPC will not act as an editor of your statement. If the HPC feels your statement is lacking, we will return it to you and delay the meeting of your HPC and your committee letter.

Primary Applications

The primary application is seen by each medical school you choose to apply to. It is how each school sees your grades, co-curricular activities, personal statement, research experiences, internships, job shadowing, awards, and other academic achievements. Make sure to shine on your application – don't undersell yourself! Use complete sentences and paragraphs in describing what you did and what you learned from the experience. Be sure to explain how the experience personally benefited you and helped you decide to apply to medical school. Don't just say "I shadowed Dr. Smith". Instead, say, "Through my shadowing experience with Dr. Smith, I learned how many health professionals it takes to successfully run a family practice in a rural community".

Your Email Address

We recommend using your college email address for your applications and that you check it daily. Provide this address to the HPC, your evaluators, and make sure it is on your résumé. The application services/schools sometimes send out important mass e-mails to all applicants and these are sometimes filtered out as spam. We will also use your college email address as our primary means of communication with you.

Regular Admissions Process: Deadline – rolling

Submit your application to AMCAS by August to ensure full consideration; most schools admit using a rolling admissions policy. A rolling admissions process means that schools begin accepting students during the summer, and continue accepting until the class is full. If you wait to turn in your AMCAS primary application in October, receive secondary applications in November, turn in your secondary applications in December, and interview in January, it is likely that half the class has already been chosen. Do not compromise your application by unnecessary delays!

Early Decision Programs: Deadline – August 1

Early Decision Programs (EDP) allow you to apply early and seek admission to just one school. If you are an outstanding applicant and are set on attending one certain school, this may be the choice for you. Guidelines for EDPs require that your application and transcripts be submitted to AMCAS by mid-June and must be submitted by August 1. You cannot apply to other programs if you are applying to an EDP until you have received confirmation that you were not admitted under the EDP which occurs on or before October 1st. If this is the case, you can then enter the general rolling admissions process at any school. If you are thinking about applying through an EDP, please discuss this with the HPC prior to applying as many schools require your undergraduate advisor to contact the school prior to receiving or accepting your application.

Waivers

A waiver for you to sign is provided for each letter of evaluation that you request, including your committee letter from the HPC. By signing the waiver, you waive your right to read or review the letter of evaluation. The positive aspect of signing the waiver is that your evaluators can be as honest and open as possible regarding your suitability for professional school. Also, many evaluators refuse to write letters without a signed waiver. A drawback of signing the waiver is that you cannot read or access the letter after it is written; however, you should be confident in your choices of evaluators prior to asking them to write you a letter.

Health Professions Committee Guidelines for Letter Writers

Thank you for providing a letter of recommendation for a health science applicant from Cornell College. The Health Professions Committee (HPC) at Cornell suggests referencing the following guidelines when writing a letter or recommendation. These guidelines were adapted from several professional schools' recommendation forms.

Please address the letter to the Cornell Health Professions Committee and return the letter to the Dimensions Associate Director, as indicated on the waiver form. Your letter will be provided to Cornell's HPC for purposes of constructing a committee letter of recommendation for this candidate. The Committee includes two biology faculty, the Dimensions Associate Director, and a fourth Cornell faculty or administrative member of the student's choice. As preferred by most professional schools, your letter will be submitted in a packet format to the professional schools indicated by the candidate. The candidate will not have access to your letter unless he/she has not waived their right to review it.

Characteristics listed below are those that are commonly suggested by professional schools when evaluating candidates. In narrative form, please address those areas in which you can honestly evaluate the candidate, providing details or examples of interactions you have had with the candidate that exemplify these characteristics. It is also helpful to state the capacity in which you know the candidate, and any distinctive characteristics that may set the candidate apart.

Motivation for the profession

Genuine motivation and enjoyment for the healthcare field, depth of commitment, stamina and endurance for the profession, providing service and assistance to others, knowledge of the specific functions and activities of healthcare delivery.

Interpersonal skills

Rapport with peers and supervisors, cooperation with others, ability to motivate and inspire, leadership skills, empathetic and sensitive to needs of others. Communication skills as witnessed in written and verbal clarity of expression. Knows limits and seeks assistance when needed.

Personality

Maturity and mood stability, performance under pressure, shows ethical and moral integrity and honesty, assuredness, independent but also a team player, works autonomously, reliable, self-confidence in abilities.

Intellectual ability and academic performance

Ability to grasp, analyze, integrate, and retain a large quantity of information. Original and imaginative, resourceful in collecting and using information. Intellectual curiosity, seeks out information above and beyond the classroom.

Additional information

Personal interactions with applicant, distinctive or unique qualities of applicant, thoughts on success of applicant in a professional academic program in the health sciences, and on their future success as a clinician, researcher, or healthcare professional.
