

2025–2026

Book selection in Follett Direct

Faculty retain academic freedom in selecting the required content, provider, and edition that best suits your course(s). Log into Self Service, hover over the Classes tab, and select Adopt Course Materials.

By providing your chosen adoptions for fall semester to the bookstore by May 15, and spring semester by September 15, you can ensure that all students have the same materials, including edition and format, on the first day of class or sooner. (Digital materials will be provisioned in Moodle two weeks prior to the first day of class to ensure they're ready to access, any physical materials will be available to pick up from the bookstore in this same timeframe.) This allows you to begin instruction on day one instead of waiting for students to acquire their materials.

Program benefits for students

BlockReady at the Bookstore provides all required course materials to students for all registered courses, including textbooks, access codes, courseware, and other course materials. The program is based on $88 per course, for a $352 cost per semester, which is added to their student account along with tuition and fees each semester, so there are no surprises about costs after enrollment. The program can save up to 60% on their required course materials, thanks to Follett's negotiations with publishing partners and bulk purchasing.

What is included for each course

- required digital materials -textbooks and course materials that are available in digital format are provisioned in Moodle 2 weeks prior to the first day of class.
- required physical materials - if the textbook you selected is only available in print, or there are additional course materials like lab books or required materials for a course they will be available for pick up from the bookstore two weeks before the first day of class
- Open Educational Resources (OER) - any OER materials that are adopted for your course should be provided to the bookstore to include in materials notifications to students

What is not included for each course

- recommended or suggested materials -any materials you include that are not designated as required will not be automatically distributed to the students. These materials will be available through the campus bookstore for individual purchase.

Student participation is optional

While we feel there is a strong benefit to students participation in this program, and that it will improve preparedness for courses and help create a more successful class experience, students are not required to participate. Each semester students have the option to opt-out for semester.

Communications to faculty

Our bookstore representative will continue to work with you to prepare your course plan materials each semester. Fall semester material selections are due by May 15 (Blocks 1-4) and spring semester material selections are due by September 15 (Blocks 5-8).

Additional information about setting up your course in Moodle will be shared as we finalize program details.

Communications to Students

Each semester

Follett and Cornell will both send communications to students about the fall opt-out deadline and how students can manage their participation in the program

Each block

Students who are opted in will receive detailed information from Follett about their required course materials that will be provisioned through BlockReady and any recommended course materials that are available for purchase at the campus bookstore. If physical materials are on the required list, students will be notified to bring their ID to the bookstore to pick those up.

Students who opt out of Block Ready will not receive course materials notifications and will need to obtain their required materials elsewhere. A list of required materials is available on the bookstore website or on the course syllabus..

Questions?

If you have questions about how to adopt materials for your courses, or which materials are available in different formats, contact Vicki Moore at the bookstore x4378 or v.moore@follett.com

If you have questions about the overall program, please reach out to Craig Teague, Associate Dean of Academic Affairs x4312 or cteague@cornellcollege.edu