

2+2 Program | SECONDARY EDUCATION

The Cornell College Education Department prepares you for a career in elementary, secondary, K-12 teaching, and for careers in a variety of education-related fields. Courses are small, interactive, and challenging. Cornell education students come from varied places and backgrounds, and after graduation they work in all types of schools across the country and internationally.

Studying One Course At A Time

Our transfer students tell us that the micro-communities created in our classrooms make it easy to integrate into Cornell student life. Completing their AA gave them the strong foundation to take on the rigor of our One Course At A Time model and continue their focus to complete their bachelor's degree without missing a beat. Every 18 days you, your classmates, and your professor have just one subject to investigate, question, discuss, and explore how it applies to your future.
