

Off-Campus Studies Scholarship Application

Cornell College

International & Off-Campus Studies

The Office of International & Off-Campus Studies awards a limited number of scholarships to international and off-campus study program participants. Awards typically range from $200 to $1,000. To be eligible, a student must 1) be enrolling in a credit-bearing off-campus course or program, 2) be enrolled in a degree program at Cornell College, 3) be in good academic and disciplinary standing, and 4) not have received a prior award from the OCS. When receiving funding for off-campus study from multiple sources, the combined awards cannot exceed the course costs. Off-campus study scholarship awards received from the Office of International and Off-campus Study may be reduced accordingly.

Our goal is to increase students' opportunities for off-campus study. Awards are determined by a student's application, academic standing, cost of the off-campus program, financial need (where applicable), the faculty recommendation letter, and the content and quality of writing in the personal statement.

Completed applications must be submitted to the Office of International & Off-Campus Studies no later than 4:30pm on the deadline posted on our webpage:

<http://www.cornellcollege.edu/off-campus-studies>. You must attach your personal statement (~500 words) to this form. Off-Campus Studies must also receive one completed faculty recommendation form prior to the deadline.
